FARM LAWS STUBBLE BURNT IN 8 MINUTES

Opposition demand for discussion on repeal bill not allowed

MANISH ANAND AND RICHA SHARMA @ New Delhi

SHOWING great urgency to wash its hands of the three contentious farm laws that have burnt its fingers, the government on Monday got Parliament approval for its repeal bill within minutes, brushing aside demands for a debate.

With that, the three laws entered the dustbin of history. The Centre managed to get the proverbial monkey off its back after a year. When the legislations were rammed through in Parliament last year, the Centre had claimed they will usher in revolutionary reforms that will change the fate of agriculture and farmers in India.

While NDA floor managers claimed there was no precedent for discussion on repeal bills, Congress leader in the Lok Sabha Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury argued that records since 2014 show both Houses had discussed such legislation.

The process began at 12.07 pm when Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla asked Union Minister for Agriculture and Farmers' Welfare Narendra Singh Tomar to present item number 14, Farm Laws Repeal Bill, 2021, which proposed negating the Farmers' Produce Trade and Commerce (Promotion and Facilitation) Act, the Farmers (Empowerment and Protection) Agreement on Price Assurance and Farm Services Act, and the Essential Commodities (Amendment) Act. By 12.10 pm, Lok Sabha passed the bill by voice vote and adjourned for the day amidst sloganeering by the Opposition, whose members stayed put in the well of the House demanding a discussion on the bill.

Two hours later, Rajya Sabha passed the bill in five minutes flat. Leader of the Opposition Mallikarjun Kharge, who was allotted two minutes to make his point, attacked the Centre for alleged "deaths of 700 farmers during the year-long agitation against the farm laws".

Last year, Lok Sabha had witnessed a spirited debate on the laws for five-and-a-half hours during which Shiromani Akali Dal leader Sukhbir Singh Badal announced his decision to walk out of the ruling NDA alliance in protest. The Rajya Sabha, too, had discussed the bills for about two hours.

In his brief remarks on Monday, Tomar regretted that the government could not convince the agitating farmers about the benefits of the laws, reiterating claims that the Congress-led previous governments had also argued for agrarian reforms.

DMK leader Tiruchy Siva said the repeal bill was circulated as supplementary business, but was not even discussed in the day's Business Advisory Committee meeting.

Earlier in the day, leaders of 11 Opposition parties met at Kharge's office in Parliament to formulate a strategy on matters to be taken up for debate. The TMC and AAP abstained.

What travellers flying to India should keep in mind

- Upload your 14-day travel history and a negative RT-PCR report, taken 72 hours prior to the travel, to the Air Suvidha portal before boarding
- If travelling from an "at-risk" country, RT-PCR tests are mandatory for all upon arrival at airports, regardless of vaccination status
- Passengers who tested negative will have to undergo home isolation for seven days, followed by repeat testing on eight day of arrival, followed by seven days of self-monitoring

Fresh guidelines for flyers as WHO warns of 'very high' Omicron risk

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Union health ministry announced new guidelines for air travellers on Monday as the World Health Organization warned that the new coronavirus variant Omicron poses a "very high" risk globally.

The new guidelines for arrivals in India, which come into effect from December 1, mandate that they first submit their 14-day travel history and a negative RT-PCR report on the Air Suvidha portal before boarding their flight.

As reported on Sunday, travellers from at-risk countries will be tested on arrival at airports, which will be in addition to the Covid-19 test taken 72 hours before departure. For travellers from countries not in the at-risk group, 5% in each flight will be randomly tested.

The at-risk countries include the European Union nations, the United Kingdom, South Africa, Brazil, Bangladesh, Botswana, China, Mauritius, New Zealand, Zimbabwe, Singapore, Hong Kong and Israel.

Meanwhile, the United Nations expressed concerns over the isolation of southern Africa, where Omicron was first detected, as more countries prohibited travel from that region. In a related development, the health ministers of the Group of Seven countries began an emergency meeting over the variant.

Japan said on Monday it would bar entry of all foreign visitors, following similar announcements by Israel and Morocco. Portugal, Spain and Scotland have reported new Omicron cases. P18

No question of statewide lockdown: CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Shivamogga

AMIDST growing concerns over the Omicron variant of the Sars-Cov-2 virus, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Monday ruled out any possibility of imposing a statewide lockdown. He also clarified that schools and colleges will continue to function, but they have been asked to follow Covid-appropriate behaviour strictly.

Bommai told reporters in Davanagere that there is no need for people to panic. "There is no proposal before us to impose a lockdown and there is no such question. Schools have been asked to be vigilant. We have not given any direction to close schools," Bommai said.

While stressing on the need for people to follow Covid-appropriate behaviour, he said, "We need to be cautious. We need to follow Covid norms." When asked whether the Omicron variant of the coronavirus was detected in the two passengers who arrived from South Africa, Bommai said, "We have sent their samples for genome sequencing. Once the results are out, we will know which strain it is. But we are maintaining strict vigil on travellers returning from countries affected by the Omicron variant."

On the issue of booster doses, he said that a decision in this regard will be taken based on the Centre's advice. "The Union Government has to take a decision in this regard. We are concerned about our health workers. They have taken the second dose of the vaccine almost six months back. Hence, we are waiting for directives from the Centre. We would like to administer booster doses to health workers," the CM said.

Two clusters at residential school, medical college

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Hassan, Chamarajanagar

AFTER Dharwad and Bengaluru, educational institutions in Hassan and Chamarajanagar districts have reported Covid clusters.

Thirteen students of a government-run residential school in Channarayapatna of Hassan district tested positive on Monday. More than 115 students, who are said to be primary contacts of the infected, were also sent to different quarantine centres. The school was later sealed and sanitised.

12 Oppn MPs in Rajya Sabha suspended

RICHA SHARMA @ New Delhi

THE second day of the Winter Session of Parliament on Tuesday is expected to be stormy with the Opposition and the Centre on a collision course over the suspension of 12 Rajya Sabha members. Six MPs from the Congress, two each from Trinamool Congress and Shiv Sena, and one each from the CPI and CPM were suspended on Monday for the rest of the session for their 'unruly' conduct in the previous session in August.

The MPs suspended under Rule 256 are: Phulo Devi Netam, Chhaya Verma, Ripun Bora, Rajamani Patel, Syed Nasir Hussain and Akhilesh Prasad Singh of the Congress; Dola Sen and Shanta Chhetri of the TMC; Priyanka Chaturvedi and Anil Desai of the Shiv Sena; the CPM's Elamaram Kareem and CPI's Binoy Viswam.

As soon as Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi moved the motion to suspend the MPs, Opposition members rose to protest the move, which led to the House being suspended for the day.

Calling the suspension — the biggest in the history of the Rajya Sabha — unfortunate and unwarranted, a joint statement issued by 14 opposition parties said their floor leaders will meet on Tuesday to discuss future strategy. The TMC was not a signatory to the statement.

According to sources, the suspended MPs will meet Rajya Sabha Chairman Venkaiah Naidu and apologise for their behaviour. If the suspension is not revoked, the Opposition may boycott the House on Tuesday.

Xian prayer halls become targets over conversion charges

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Hassan, Belagavi

A tense atmosphere prevailed for some time on the outskirts of Belur town on Sunday after pro-Hindu activists engaged in an altercation with members of the Christian community, alleging forcible conversion of two youths.

Bajrang Dal activists gathered in front of the prayer hall on Billodu Road alleging that two youths had been forcibly converted, leading to heated arguments from both sides. The activists also allegedly tried to barge into the hall, raising slogans. Sources said the activists try to lay siege to the prayer hall alleging that there has been an increase in "forcible conversions". They also allegedly tried to attack the head of the congregation.

The local police intervened and brought the situation under control. Additional police forces have been deployed to prevent any further flare-ups.

Members of the Vishwa Hindu Parishat alleged that conversions are increasing in the taluk and complaints lodged with the police have not been taken seriously. They also warned that they will intensify protests if the police fail to curb forcible conversions.

Meanwhile, in Belagavi, the Christian community is anxious after public prayers which several Christian institutions were holding in private places were halted by the local administration.

Personally, we feel this is a dangerous development. Instead of asking pastors to refrain from conducting public prayers, the police should bring the miscreants, who insisted on shutting down prayer halls, to book and punish them. Omicron may already be here: Dr Kang

CHETANA BELAGERE @ Bengaluru

WHILE fears of the highly divergent Omicron variant of the coronavirus loom large in India, renowned microbiologist Dr Gagandeep Kang has expressed fears that it may have already entered the country. The focus now should be on ramping up genome sequencing and introducing S-Gene PCR testing to quickly detect it and act on containing the spread, she stressed.

Speaking exclusively to TNIE, Dr Kang, microbiologist and virologist, Christian Medical College, Vellore, said, "It's very likely that this variant is already in much more than the 12 countries identified so far. It may be in India too, but our genome sequencing is so slow that we don't know if it is here. There is no use if sequencing data comes one month after an event has occurred. Then, it becomes an academic exercise. It does not help with control of the new variant if it has entered the population. Hopefully now, the sequencing will be faster and we will have an answer to that."

She explained that this variant has something called as S Gene dropout, which means there's no need for genome sequencing too if S Gene PCR tests are done. This can give a report on the presence of the Omicron in a few hours. "This will allow us to get very rapid epidemiological information and once we have that, we will have a sense of spread." While mutation of the virus was expected, what came as a surprise is that the Omicron has more mutations (30-plus in the spike protein) than any other variants seen before, she said. P3

Big B gets open letter, KBC pulls out 'super power' episode

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mangaluru

POPULAR entertainment channel Sony TV has pulled down its Kaun Banega Crorepati episode on 'Midbrain Activation' from all platforms. The move follows an open letter to the show host Amitabh Bachchan by Mangaluru-based rationalist and president of the Federation of Indian Rationalist Associations, Narendra Nayak.

Taking serious exception to the broadcast of the episode, Nayak, in his open letter, had stated that endorsement of such 'super power' is a travesty of common sense and against the Constitution of India, pointing to Article 51 A(h) which states that it is duty of every citizen to develop scientific temper, the spirit of inquiry and humanism.

He had also said that if such super powers were to exist, it would be a Nobel prize-winning discovery because it goes against all known principles of medical sciences — vision without light falling on the retina — that too, not any flashes or a sense of light or darkness, but fully developed faculties. In the controversial episode, a girl was shown demonstrating that she could see things even when blindfolded.

Nayak said he received a response to his open letter from the private channel on Monday. The mail said, "Thank you for your viewership. We would like to inform you that that the said episode has been pulled off from all platforms, we have suitably edited the scenes. Further, we have sensitised the team to be more vigilant and avoid such interactions for all future episodes."

Further, the mail added, "At Sony Pictures Networks India (SPNI), our endeavour at all times has been to ensure that the content is within the framework of the laws of India. SPNI is sensitive to the sentiments of our viewers. We place great emphasis on providing wholesome quality entertainment and we take care to ensure the sensibilities of our viewers are not affected." It has asked Nayak to approach the Broadcasting Content Complaints Council within 15 days if he is not satisfied with the response.

New Year parties will depend on Covid scenario

DCs of Bengaluru Urban and Rural to watch for clusters and also rising cases

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

BRUHAT Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta on Monday stated that the decision on granting permission for New Year celebrations in the city, depends upon the situation around the rising cases of Covid-19.

He said a clear picture will be known in the next 8-10 days, depending upon the number of Covid cases. So far, no case of the new variant 'Omicron' has been reported in Bengaluru, but directions have been given to the Deputy Commissioners of Bengaluru Urban and Rural to closely watch for clusters and also rising cases. All international travellers are being tested and their samples are being sent for genome sequencing, while they are also under constant watch.

Speaking to reporters, Gupta added that a few days ago, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai held a meeting with the health department, technical advisory committee members and experts to assess the situation. It was decided that all advisories issued by the World Health Organisation and Union Health Ministry will be adhered to.

In addition, Gupta said that experts and TAC members are also holding discussions every day and expressing their opinions. The State Health Department meeting is scheduled to be held on Tuesday, where more clarity will be obtained on the prevailing situation.

Meanwhile, a decision on New Year celebrations will only be taken depending on the situation. Clusters are also being reported in different schools. It has also been decided to intensify checks on people not wearing masks and not following Covid safety guidelines.

Students worried over swab, jab centre at school

People queue up to give their swab samples at the Government Higher Primary School in Siddapura near Whitefield, in Bengaluru on Monday | ASHISHKRISHNA HP

We do not know what kind of people come there to get tested. If they test positive, wouldn't it pose a threat to the safety and health of little children?

Shrinivasaiah, a resident

ASHWINI M SRIPAD AND ASHISHKRISHNA HP @ Bengaluru

EACH day, when the students of the Government Higher Primary School in Siddapura near Whitefield enter its gates, they are greeted by people standing in long queues on either side of the premises. Shockingly, one queue has those taking their Covid vaccines, while the other is made up of those getting tested for the disease. With the state witnessing a gradual spurt in positive cases lately, especially at educational institutions, the children studying at this school, their parents and even teachers are anxious about what they are exposed to on a daily basis.

Over 120 students, across Classes 1-7, study at the institution, taught by five teachers. Its one-acre premises has a sizable play area as well.

Meanwhile, the left side of the premises houses a temporary structure used for administering Covid vaccines. Then, there is a small Primary Health Centre, adjacent to which are buildings with classrooms and a place where the students are served their midday meal. On the extreme right, another temporary shed -- next to the wash area and toilets -- is set up for Covid testing. "We do not know what kind of people come there to get tested. If they test positive, wouldn't it pose a threat to the safety and health of little children? Many people, including techies, come there to get tested," informed Shrinivasaiah, a local.

Speaking to TNIE, Raveendra, another resident and member of the School Development Monitoring Committee, said it has been more than one-and-half years that the school is being used for Covid testing. "During the lockdown, no classes were held. Hence, swabs of people began to be collected here for Covid testing... But now classes have restarted, and it's a worry," he added.

When contacted, Dr R Vishal, Commissioner for the Department of Public Instruction, said, "I will direct the officials to ensure safety of the students."

No talks yet on closing schools: Minister

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA
@ Bengaluru

WITH Covid cases emerging in educational institutes, with at least 55 out of 386-plus cases reported so far coming from schools, the Education Department is yet to discuss about closing them.

Speaking to TNIE, Nagesh said there has been no discussion within the department on school closures, nor with the Technical Advisory Committee. However, considering the global situation, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has spoken to the CM and advised all department heads to be cautious. The Chief minister has done the same, he added. Meanwhile, testing will continue at borders. "We are watching the schools carefully, as the students have not been vaccinated."

As for students who have to cross borders and come to schools in Karnataka, he said a majority of them come to higher education institutes and are told to get an RTPCR test every seven days. "Not even a single student or elderly person tested positive in Dakshina Kannada, which is astonishing," he said.

For school students who come from across the border, he said, "Schoolers are not forced to get an RT-PCR test, but testing has been done on students as well. Many schools have tested their students," He recalled that recently, one lakh persons were tested in Tumakuru district and there were almost no positive cases. The Technical Advisory Committee was expected to apprise the CM on Monday and whatever decision is taken, it will be followed, he added.

SC regularises 300 houses in Karanth Layout

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

IN a major relief for 300 homeowners in the upcoming Dr Shivaram Karanth Layout, the Supreme Court has ordered that their houses be regularised and integrated into the BDA layout. This is the first batch to be regularised and offers hope to 1,418 applicants seeking regularisation.

The order last Thursday (November 25) follows the court-appointed Justice A V Chandrashekhar Committee submitting two reports recently, recommending the step.

Justice S Abdul Nazeer and Justice Sanjiv Khanna gave the verdict when hearing a case between the BDA and Government of Karnataka and Others. The court said their order is in the light of recommendations made in the third and fourth report submitted by the committee on November 10 and November 23 respectively.

The committee was appointed with the objective of establishing the legality of constructions that had come up in the layout between November 26, 2014, and August 3, 2018, which could be regularised. Any construction after the cut-off date would be deemed illegal.

Directing BDA not to take possession of lands or buildings specified in the committee's report in annexures L0001 to L0026, the court said, "The Commissioner of the BDA is directed to issue Registration Certificates to the concerned applicants in a transparent manner within four weeks from today, under the supervision of the Justice A V Chandrashekar Committee."

A top BDA official said, "Possession certificates would be issued within four weeks to the 300 property owners."

Jayakar Jerome, a member of the committee, told TNIE, "This is just the first instalment of houses to be regularised. The committee has received 1,418 applications from those who have built structures between 2014 and 2018, within the SC-fixed deadline."

The committee has received 6,278 applications from the public dating from December 31, 2008, till August 3, 3018, he said. "We split them into three buckets: the 2014-2018 category, pre-2014 and those who began construction before the August 3, 2018 deadline." Detailed analysis found that a majority of residential or commercial buildings in each category have not got approval for construction.

30th November: More on lunar influences. According to the latest research by British Telecom, one of the world's largest phone operators, there is consistent evidence that telephone usage peaks in the seven days leading up the Full Moon. This may surprise the corporate executives, but it's just what astrologers would expect.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
You're one to set the rules, rather than obey them! Consider the course of action that is correct for you, rather than just going along with the crowd. Distant places may beckon, and on the most mundane level this is a useful day for fixing travel plans.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Social connections could involve legal complications. Just how or why this should be so is not clear, but you can help matters along by making sure that you know exactly what is your responsibility - and what is a partner's. Mind you, they might not agree with you!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Your very personal business could appear to be someone else's problem, but you shouldn't believe everything you hear. At work there are ways to boost your income, but only if you approach the issues from a radically different direction. You may have to drag colleagues into the present, though!

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
As soon as one relationship is ended another will begin, which must be good news. Yet, it may be your own attitudes which need attention, rather than the people you mix with. You can, if you wish, completely transform your feelings and behaviour within one special intimate partnership.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Sometimes the right words come out in the wrong way. Too much has been said in haste or in anger recently, and you should now find ways to recharge your emotional batteries. Try to find imaginative means of increasing your earning power, but remember to consult others at every step.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
One particular emotional involvement is now passing through a curious phase. What once seemed so true may now seem like a waste of time. You may feel free to speak your mind and put your foot down, and shouldn't be intimidated by others' ability to confuse the issues.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You're coming up to a critical moment for home and family relationships, and any and all positive changes ought now to be encouraged. There should soon be good news for those planning a move, and while financial matters look uncertain, you may need to reach the best agreement you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
You may still have to consider long-term investments, but it's immediate cash concerns which need sorting out first. You're at your most persuasive, so you may try presenting proposals which have already been rejected, giving them an entirely different gloss.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
The climate is still much too volatile to settle on long-term plans. The current feeling that everything is up for grabs should suit your temperament, so you'll be tempted to put aside any lingering fears for your security. Keep partners informed as and when you feel it's necessary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
There is intense pressure for constructive change across the board. You may be primed to benefit most if you are pursuing a creative line, or committed to any activity which is designed for self-improvement. Only the highest standards will do!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
What you do with your private life is up to you. However, others may disagree! It's especially important to keep a dialogue going at home, all the more so if you want to keep parents or children on your side. If you try to go it alone then you'll almost certainly come unstuck.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
You will be tempted into rash decisions and impulsive actions, a tendency which although strong today, may continue all week. The final decision must always be yours, but do be aware of the likely consequences: there is no substitute for careful planning.

Sample of 1 SA traveller is not Delta, sent to lab

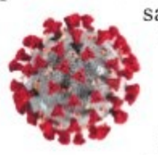
Minister Sudhakar, TAC to take stock today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

OF the two South African travellers to Karnataka who tested Covid-19 positive, one sample was found to be different from the Delta variant, said Health and Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar, adding that the sample is of a 63-year-old man.

"We have sent the sample to a central government laboratory and are waiting for the final report. We are taking every possible step to contain the spread of the new mutant strain. However, it is said to be spreading rapidly, and I am afraid we cannot stop it as India sees an influx of millions of people every day. What we can do, however, is contain it," said Sudhakar, adding that there is no discussion or decision on lockdown.

On Tuesday, Sudhakar will hold a meeting with health department officials and the Covid-19 Technical Advisory Committee, to decide on what measures must be taken. By December 1, they expect to get more clarity on the behaviour of the new variant. The symptoms of the new variant, he said, include nausea, vomiting, giddiness, increase in pulse rate. However, there is no loss of taste or smell. "It will not be as bad as Delta. Hospitalisation and severity is less," he said."The state has to go back to the strategy of 5Ts — Trace, Track, Test, Treat and Technology. This cannot be called the third wave yet. We have to be vigilant at airports, and are conducting surveillance at all our airports," he informed.



A passenger coming from the 10 to 12 vulnerable countries who tests positive, will be shifted to hospital. In addition, the government is tracking those who travelled from South Africa to Karnataka in the past 15 days, to test their primary and secondary contacts.

Travel bans cannot curb spread of Omicron: Experts

RANJANI MADHAVAN @ Bengaluru

With increase in Covid-19 clusters and the scare of Omicron looming, every passenger arriving at the city's KSR railway station is subjected to testing to prevent the spread of the infection | ASHISHKRISHNA HP

TRAVEL bans in the light of detection of the new Omicron variant, are not a useful measure and their benefits are limited for a multitude of reasons, some experts say. From what we know of the pandemic, by the time a travel ban is implemented, the virus would already be in circulation in the country, said noted epidemiologist, vaccinologist and public health expert Dr Chandrakant Lahariya. A travel ban may only help delay the entry of the variant.

"A key aspect is that if a travel ban is imposed for reporting new strains, it disincentivises the country which is documenting and reporting the variant honestly. They might stop reporting, fearing the economic impact of a ban. This is counterproductive," Dr Lahariya explained.

He added that countries that have imposed the ban, have already reported cases of the new variant. Moreover, the ban does not affect countries that have the variant in circulation, but have not reported it yet, causing the virus to enter other countries this way.

In a thread on social media, Dr Giridhar Babu, epidemiologist and member of the Karnataka Covid Technical Advisory Committee, said Botswana, South Africa and Hong Kong cannot be the only areas where Omicron has travelled. These areas probably have better surveillance and genomic sequencing and hence, have reported it in a timely manner. Absence of reporting is not absence of circulation, he cautioned.

"Imposing travel curbs, restricting entry from a few countries is not going to prevent or control the spread of Omicron. It's akin to closing a stable door after a horse has bolted. Instead, identify clusters of cases of recent origin and do genomic sequencing," Dr Babu said.

Dr Lahariya said the way forward is stronger surveillance at the port of entry, containment, testing and genomic sequencing.

There is no evidence that travel bans are effective, said Dr Vinod Scaria, genomics scientist at the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research - Institute Of Genomics And Integrative Biology, on twitter. He too said that in most cases, virus transmission would have already happened before the ban is imposed.

'RATE OF INFECTION SPREAD A WORRY'

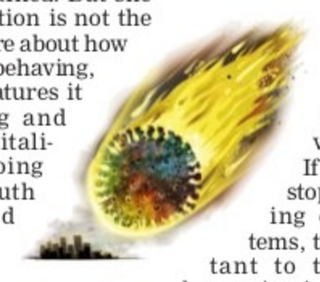
TO understand transmissibility better, it may take a week's time, Dr Kang added.

"If we have a virus that is spreading easily in a vaccinated population, then there will be a quicker answer to immune escape. In South Africa, only about a quarter of the population is vaccinated, but reports from Israel say that it has infected even those who were triple-vaccinated with mRNA vaccine doses," Dr Kang explained. But she says the infection is not the worry, it is more about how the disease is behaving, the clinical features it is presenting and whether hospitalisations are going up like in South Africa and elsewhere.



On the increase in clusters in Karnataka, Dr Kang stressed that any crowded event can cause infections, even in the vaccinated population, but added that the rate of spread is worrying. "What one needs to be worried about is transmission of the infection to vulnerable populations. Genome sequencing of such clusters, observing what kind of population is infected, whether it is breakthrough infection, the clinical features, etc., need to be observed immediately, she said.

Dr Kang also felt that no government should introduce travel bans. "It will delay a proportion of new viruses coming in. But we have to remember these viruses spread in asymptomatic individuals. We cannot permanently exclude any variant from travelling unless you shut the world down completely again, and we don't need to do that," she said.

She suggested that state governments should get to tracking people. Also, sequencing reports should come in faster and the country should define its public health response, she added. "If the goal is to stop transmission, then timeliness becomes very important. If the goal is to stop the overwhelming of health systems, then it is important to track what is happening in terms of clinical information from cases everywhere in the world and prepare your health system for that. Actions taken are very dependent on the goal for public health or policy."

"If the purpose is to prevent Omicron from coming in, then it may already be here. But if the goal is in the short term — to rapidly ramp up testing in the hope of stopping it from coming in — then at least two tests for every incoming traveller have to be done, either before they travel and five days later, or once they arrive in the state and a week later again," she noted.

We cannot permanently exclude any variant from travelling unless you shut the world down completely again, and we don't need to do that

Mortuary negligence: Kin seek action against civic body, hosp

ENS @ Bengaluru

FOLLOWING the discovery of bodies of two Covid-19 victims in an old mortuary freezer over a year after they died, relatives of the two victims are outraged at the "negligence". They are demanding strict action against BBMP and ESI Rajajinagar Hospital for their negligence.

The two victims, identified as Durga Sitaram, 40, from Chamarajpet and Muniraju, 62, from KP Agrahara, had succumbed to Covid in July 2020. Their bodies had been stored in ESI Rajajinagar's mortuary, where hospital staff had failed to transfer them when they had shut down the mortuary due to its proximity to an oxygen pipeline. The bodies were found by staff on Saturday.

Relatives say that they were informed that the bodies had been handed over to BBMP and last rites had already been performed. Sujatha, a relative of Durga Sitaram, said, "I found out about the bodies only after the hospital and BBMP called me," she said.

A relative of Muniraju, Satish Kumar, told reporters, "Both the hospital and BBMP agree that it is a matter of negligence. But it's still not acceptable. They had threatened us when we asked district officer's number, telling us that it was already late and not to come. They forced us out of the hospital and now they are apologising."

Former minister S Suresh Kumar has demanded a departmental inquiry and action against those responsible. He said both ESI staff and BBMP should be held responsible.

58 ULBs to see polls under Covid shadow

Voting to be held on December 27; third major test for Bommai

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

Amid fears of the formation of new Covid-19 clusters in the state and the anxiety over the Omicron variant, the State Election Commission on Monday announced the election dates for 58 urban local bodies (ULBs) in Karnataka. The elections will be held on December 27 and counting of votes will be taken up on December 30. Most of the urban local bodies that will go to polls have remained without elected representatives for the last three to four years.

These polls will be the third major electoral test for Chief Miniser Basavaraj Bommai since he assumed office in July after the resignation of BS Yediyurappa.

The bypolls to Hanagal and Sindagi Assembly segments were a mixed bag for the BJP with the party managing to win just Sindagi. The December 10 biennial elections to the Legislative Council from 20 local body constituencies for 25 seats will be another test for Bommai to reassert his position in the party after the BJP's embarrassing defeat in Hanagal, located in his home district Haveri.

Now, the urban local body polls will be yet another challenge for Bommai. Elections will be held in 1,185 wards of five city municipal corporations, 19 town municipal corporations and 34 town panchayats. Also, elections for four city municipal corporations, including Chikkamagaluru , Sira, Gadag-Betageri and Hosapete, along with three town municipal corporations — Athani, Annigeri and Bankapura. There are as many as 209 wards in these ULBs.

Along with this, 976 wards from various CMCs, TMCs and Town Panchayats from Bengaluru Urban, Ramanagara, Chitradurga, Davanagere, Dakshina Kannada, Udupi, Belagavi, Vijayapura, Bagalkot, Haveri, Uttara Kannada, Koppal, Ballari, Vijayanagara, Raichur and Yadgir districts will also be held. Bypolls for various CMCs, TMCs and Town Panchayats will also be held at Chamarajanagar, Davanagere, Uttara Kannada, Chikkaballapur, Belagavi, Vijayapura, Kalaburagi, Haveri and Bagalkot.

The schedule for the urban local bodies elections were announced following the directives from the High Court, which was hearing a series of petitions on elections to ULBs asked the SEC as to when it could hold them. The State Government had issued the reservation for these wards on November 27.

CM sets 2-week deadline to disburse crop loss aid

RAMU PATIL @Bengaluru

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai greets the public at Siddaganga Mutt in Tumakuru on Monday | EXPRESS

AFTER announcing that crop loss compensation will be directly deposited into farmers bank accounts within 24 hours after details are uploaded on the government website, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai directed the officials to take up the process on war-footing and complete it by December second week.

Sources in the government told TNIE that Bommai has set a deadline that compensation for the crop losses till November 21 should be given before the first week of December and the process of granting compensation for losses between November 21 and 30 should be completed by December second week. "The officials are working on a war-footing to complete all payments by second week of December," sources said. Till November 20, Rs 130 crore was released and another Rs 100 crore was released in the last 10 days towards compensation for crop loss in this season, from July onwards.

Agriculture Department officials estimate that standing crop in around 7 lakh hectares was damaged, while the Revenue Department estimates it to be around 5 to 6 lakh hectares. The reconciliation process is underway as the Revenue Department is preparing a detailed memorandum to be submitted to the Centre seeking financial assistance, sources said.

The officials said Legislative Council elections will not have any impact on the process as they will be following set procedures and guidelines and money will be deposited directly into farmers' accounts. Compensation is provided to farmers soon after the details are uploaded by the local officials, sources said.

When contacted, Tushar Girinath, Principal Secretary, Revenue Department, said Rs 226.81 crore was deposited into 3.89 lakh farmers bank accounts by November 26.

Farmers, however, are not too happy with the compensation amount; Rs 6,800, Rs 13,500 and Rs 18000 per hectare for rainfed, irrigated/horticulture and perennial crops, respectively. Even the State Agriculture Price Commission, in its recent report to Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, had stated that the compensation is not adequate and the state should recommend to the Centre to increase it to Rs 50,000 per hectare for agri/cash crops and Rs 1 lakh per hectare for multi-year crops.

"The officials have done the survey. But compensation we get will not even be sufficient for buying pesticides and fertilisers. The process will also take a lot of time" said Prabhakar Y, a farmer from Mulbagal. Prabhakar said tomato in his 7.5 acres farm was damaged in recent rains.

L Hanumaiah, a farmer from a village in Kolar taluk, said the officials are still receiving applications. "We have not got the compensation. The officials have not visited us and are asking us to give the details," he said. The CM had visited Kolar, which was among the worst-hit districts, recently.

State govt seeks additional grants for input subsidy

BENGALURU: Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Monday said that the State Government has written to the Union Government seeking additional grants for input subsidy. Speaking to the media in Tumakuru, he said the recent unseasonal rains have caused huge crop loss across the state. "We have written to Union Secretary to Disaster Management seeking additional grants to compensate the affected farmers," Bommai added. The CM said they have requested the Union Government to send an inter-ministerial Central team to Karnataka to assess the extent of crop loss as the Centre had asked the state about the additional financial assistance required. Bommai said the government has already started the crop survey. ompensation has already been given to farmers in many districts where crop survey details have been uploaded on the Parihara App and Rs 685 crore is available with the districts administrations to provide input subsidy, he said.

A big win, but will continue agitation, say farmers

FARM LAWS

FARMERS leaders in Karnataka termed the Union Governemnt's move to repeal the farm laws as a major victory for the farmers' agitation. However, as decided earlier, they will continue with the agitation till other demands, including a law to guarantee minimum support price (MSP), are met.

"Major danger has been averted now. However, the government is yet to consider many of our other demands, including a clear assurance on the law to guarantee the MSP, withdrawal of Electricity Bill, and withdrawal of cases filed against farmers taking part in the agitation," said Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha president Kodihalli Chandrashekar.

"We are also demanding for land at Singhu border to build martyr memorial. Our agitation will continue till all our demands are met," said Chandrashekar, who was at the forefront of the agitation in Karnataka.

He also demanded the PM to drop a Union Minister, whose son was allegedly involved in the Lakhimpur-Kheri incident in which the protesting farmers were mowed down by a speeding vehicle.

State Sugarcane Growers Association president Kuruburu Shantakumar said such a situation was created as the Centre had failed to consult farmers before bringing in the farm laws. "The farm laws were withdrawn after 700 people died in the protests. At least now the government has realised its mistake," he said. Shantakumar demanded the Centre to announce compensation to the farmers who died during the protests.

Farmers in Karnataka are also demanding the State Government to withdraw amendments to the APMC Act made to facilitate implementation of the central law that has been repealed now. The State Government was waiting for clear directives from the Centre to withdraw the amendments.

Meanwhile, Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister JC Madhuswamy said the State Government has not taken any decision on it.

DKS smells electoral malpractice in Belagavi dist

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Belagavi

> We are aware that people other than actual voters have voted in several areas of Belagavi, particularly in Gokak, Arabhavi, Raibag and other areas in the fistrict in the past elections
> DK Shivakumar, KPCC president

WHILE stating that there is a possibility of manipulation of votes in some of the constituencies in Belagavi district in the forthcoming election from Belagavi local bodies' constituency, KPCC president D K Shivakumar has appealed to the Election Commission and the government to deploy separate police teams besides installation of video cameras in the polling booths in Gokak, Raibag, Arabhavi and other adjoining areas.

Shivakumar said that the KPCC would file a complaint with the Election Commission making an appeal to initiate stringent measures to ensure free and fair election in Belagavi. "We are aware that people other than actual voters have voted in several areas of Belagavi, particularly in Gokak, Arabhavi, Raibag and other areas here in the past elections," he said. Shivakumar also hit out at the BJP in connection with the recent statement of BJP MLA Ramesh Jarkiholi that the voters should give one of their votes to BJP and that they should not give another vote to the Congress. "BJP is running the government by entertaining blackmailers inside it. It has failed to act against leaders who are involved in blackmailing it regularly. As head of a party, I would have expelled such elements in our party if such developments were to take place in the Congress," he said.

When asked about the recent purported remark made by Ramesh to address MLA Laxmi Hebbalkar, Shivakumar said, "Such language by a BJP leader reflects the party's culture. There are more than 50% women leaders in BJP and they keep claiming that BJP is a cultured party." Highlighting the role of Congress in building the panchayat system in the country, he said that the Congress worked to strengthen local bodies by giving them more funds.

The BJP government could not conduct the session in Belagavi for the past two years fearing protests by civilians and farmers and they now agreed to conduct it, he thundered.

JDS MLC QUITS AHEAD OF COUNCIL POLLS

BENGALURU: JDS Legislative Council member CR Manohar, who had only 36 days to retirement, tendered his resignation, and insiders reckon it was to spite JDS leaders with whom he shared a sour relationship. Manohar, who had been to the Legislative Council Chairman's office to resign, had to return because the Council Chairman was on tour in Delhi. He returned on Monday and resigned after meeting Chairman Basavaraj Horatti. Horatti told The New Indian Express that Manohar had spoken to him on Sunday about resigning, and since he was not present physically, he had informed him to come on Monday. Manohar reached the office around 8.30am and tendered his resignation. Manohar was a realtor whose relationship with JDS had soured over the past few years. With this, JDS numbers are expected to come down in the Upper House. JDS sources said they has strong chances of winning the Mandya and Hassan council seats while in Kolar, CBPur, Bangalore Rural and Tumkur, they stood a chance if they received support from BJP. ENS

More Congress leaders to join BJP, claims Munirathna

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kolar

Horticulture and Kolar district in-charge Minister Munirathna has hinted that a few more prominent Kolar Congress leaders will join the Bharatiya Janata Party soon. Speaking to the media in Kolar, Munirathna said several leaders were unhappy with the Congress. Munirathna said former Kolar District Congress president Chandra Reddy and former AICC member N Srinivas joining the BJP will help the party in Kolar district. "The duo joining our party will benefit the BJP at the district level. Both the leaders are prominent politicians in Kolar. There are a lot of surprises in store for political leaders of all political parties in the coming days over the developments in the district," he said.

In Mandya, candidates connect with KRRS, Ambareesh fans for support

K SHIVA KUMAR @Mysuru

With the Legislative Council poll campaign hotting up in Mandya, all three major political parties are reaching out to the Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha (KRRS) and Ambareesh's fans for support to win the prestigious seat.

This is pushing not only political parties, but also local leaders to prove their mettle, and work out strategies to win over panchayat members. The Janata Dal (Secular) has fielded sitting member Appaji Gowda, BJP has picked Bookahalli Manju and the Congress Dinesh Guligowda.

Except for Appaji Gowda, the other two are new faces trying their luck in the sugar bowl against the JDS, that has seven sitting MLAs and a strong base in the district. The JDS is playing up Kumaraswamy's pride and his commitment to the people of Mandya and farmers.

The Congress, under the leadership of former and Congress Legislature Party leader Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and former MLAs N Chaluvarayaswamy and PM Narendraswamy, has stepped up the campaign of Dinesh Guligowda, hoping that a victory in the Council polls will set the trend for the Taluk and Zilla Panchayat polls, and general elections.

The Congress, other than mobilising its traditional voters, is relying on anti-incumbency, and accusing sitting members of non-performance. Party candidates are also knocking at the Raitha Sangha, that has about 370 panchayat members of 4,250 voters, and have met KRRS leader Sunitha Puttannaiah and others, to garner crucial votes.

On the other hand, Minister Narayan Gowda is leading from the front to put up an impressive performance and ensure the victory of Manju. Claiming to have a majority in KR Pet and other taluks, the party is putting its hand into JDS and Congress baskets, other than reaching out to Sumalatha's supporters. Manju personally appealed to a few local Raitha Sangha leaders for their support.

Meanwhile, Mandya Member of Parliament Sumalatha's decision to remain neutral and not support any candidate, fearing it would lead to a controversy, has prompted all three candidates to win over Ambareesh's fans who carry their own weight in a few panchayats. Sumalatha has said she was supported by people from all political parties in the Lok Sabha polls, and was in no mood to support a particular candidate. "I will vote for a good candidate," she added.

Despite this, the BJP has urged her to support its candidate, and Congress leaders are closely working with her followers.

The Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha is playing its cards close to its chest and has called a meeting of leaders and office-bearers to reach a decision, though Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha state president Badagalapura Nagendra has ruled out the possibility of supporting the BJP.

BELAGAVI SESSION

Omicron a worry for legislators, staffers

BANSY KALAPPA
@Bengaluru

A considerable number of legislators and Vidhana Soudha staffers have expressed serious concerns about holding the Assembly session in Suvarna Soudha, Belagavi, considering the new Omicron scare. They said that while Vidhana Soudha is equipped with glass partitions and other abundant facilities, and the best medical care, should it be necessary, Suvarna Soudha has neither glass partitions nor proper residential facilities for everyone. The legislative session is scheduled to be held in Belagavi between December 13 and 24.

Sources said a team from the legislative secretariat will visit Belagavi on Wednesday and apprise Speaker Vishweshwar Hegde Kageri and Council Chairman Horatti about the facilities there. One source informed that if the concern is about glass partitions and other safety features, these were put in place in Vidhana Soudha in about seven days, and could be set up in Suvarna Soudha in the next two weeks.

Another concern that legislators and staffers have is travelling to Belagavi by trains and buses, and also that the distance between Suvarna Soudha and any medical facility in Belagavi is a good 15km.

Horatti said, "While we are duty-bound to obey the orders of the cabinet, nevertheless, I will raise these concerns and ask those concerned to weigh the options and take a final decision."

Speaker Vishweshwar Hegde Kageri said, "The government's decision is final, and I am sure that the right decision will be taken, depending on information about the situation." The speaker will personally visit Belagavi on Thursday and meet officials and staffers. "Karnataka Legislative Assembly Speaker Vishweshwar Hegde Kageri will hold discussions with the district officers of Belagavi on Thursday at Suvarna Vidhana Soudha, regarding preparations for the legislature session," a press release from the Speaker's office said.

Horatti said, "The Chief Minister, Assembly Speaker and Council Chairman are all from North Karnataka and many had said we should hold the session in Belagavi, but concerns about Omicron were not present then."

Chargesheet in hacking case likely this weekend

ED seeks details of Bitcoin scam in which Srikrishna is main accused

BALA CHAUHAN @Bengaluru

THE Criminal Investigation Department (CID) is likely to submit the chargesheet by this weekend against hacker Srikrishna alias Sriki and others in the hacking and siphoning off of Rs 11.55 crore earnest money deposit funds from the e-procurement cell of the Centre for e-Governance, Government of Karnataka.

"Srikrishna had allegedly hacked the government portal on the insistence of his friend and co-accused, who is a contractor, and had siphoned off Rs 11.55 crore," said informed sources. The CID has, however, remained tightlipped about the investigation in the case and the impending chargesheet.

Srikrishna, in his voluntary statement (which has no evidentiary value) to the Central Crime Branch (CCB), had reportedly confessed that he had first attempted hacking the e-procurement site of the State Government in August 2018 using a database attacking tool — Salmap — but was unsuccessful. In 2019, he had exploited a remote code execution vulnerability, got access to the bidder information and downloaded all the files relating to the bids, excel sheet files containing the transaction details, bid reference, payment amount, IFSC codes and account numbers of bidders among others.

Meanwhile, the Directorate of Enforcement (ED) has reportedly written to the CCB requesting sharing the case details on the alleged Bitcoin (BTC) scam in which Srikrishna is the main accused and has been charge-sheeted.

"The ED had in August provisionally attached Rs 1.44 crore in the hacking and siphoning off of funds by Srikrishna and others under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA). Further action will be taken based on the material provided by the investigating agencies and ED's investigation," said sources.

RAIN TOLL IN TN TOUCHES 106

Chennai to get a breather as new low pressure area to move towards AP, Odisha

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chennai

AT least 106 people have died in rain-related incidents in Tamil Nadu, Revenue Minister KKSSR Ramachandran said on Monday. The State has provided relief to the tune of ₹2.36 crore to the kin of 59 of the deceased, and will provide aid to the others following inquiries, he added. Besides, 13 people, who were injured due to the rains, have been given a compensation of ₹55,900.*

In the 24 hours ending 8 am on Monday, 209 cattle and 5,600 chickens were killed in rain-related incidents, and 1,139 hutments and 189 houses were damaged, the minister said at a press conference, adding that ₹3.43 crore has been given as compensation for loss of cattle, and ₹10.17 crore for loss of huts.

He also indicated that another Central team might visit Tamil Nadu to assess the damage due to the rain. At a recent all-party meeting in New Delhi, DMK parliamentary party leader TR Baalu informed the Union government that a further assessment of the damage is needed.

The minister said between October 1 and November 29, Tamil Nadu received an average rainfall of 635.42 mm, which is 80 per cent above the normal rainfall for this period (352.60 mm). In 2015, Chennai received 1,610 mm of rain, and this year, so far, the city has received 1,866 mm of rain. Statewide, 15,164 people have been lodged in 182 relief camps.

Responding to a question, Ramachandran said, "The government is taking the lessons learnt about water stagnation during the current rainy season, and will set things right in the coming days."

Officials have been told to identify stagnation-prone spots and take permanent steps to avoid flooding, once the rains subside. Since the intensity of the rain has reduced in many parts of the State, relief and restoration work has been expedited, the minister said.

Meanwhile, a new low pressure area (LPA) forming over the South Andaman Sea is set to concentrate into a depression and move towards coastal Andhra Pradesh and Odisha. As this will be taking all the moisture over Tamil Nadu, rains are set to subside in Chennai on Tuesday. The city, which has been experiencing severe flooding, will get a breather.

Maoists plan to deploy more armed cadre in the ghats

M P PRASHANTH @ Kozhikode

MAOISTS are planning to strengthen their presence in the areas coming under the Western Ghats Special Zonal Committee by redeploying their armed cadre from other parts of the country. Such a strategy is being contemplated in view of the depleting number of cadre of the Peoples Liberation Guerrilla Army (PLGA) after a series of encounter killings, arrests and surrenders, and to counter the intensified efforts from the Kerala Police to get Maoists surrendered, said sources.

The number of members of PLGA -- the armed wing of the CPI (Maoist) – has come down to 14 from around 40 in 2015. Over the years, two central committee members, many zonal committee members and cadre from the lower ranks were either killed or arrested. The Bhavani Dalam (squad) of the Maoists has been completely decimated after the encounter at Manjakkandy in Palakkad in October 2019.

Rajan Chittilappalli, who was leading the Urban Bureau, was arrested in December 2020, and Raghavendra, the link between the zonal committee and central committee, was picked up from Kannur on November 6.

Maoist movement in Western Ghats is passing through the worst patch in its 10 years' history. The resources are dwindling and the morale of its workers has hit the rock bottom. To top it all, the police have been vigorously pursuing its surrender-cum-rehabilitation programme.

Observers point out that the Maoists have the history of redeploying their cadre when they are confronting adverse situations or part of certain strategies. Erstwhile CPI-ML (People's War) had withdrawn their cadre from the North Telangana area after the police action was intensified. The cadre were later redeployed to strengthen the movement in the Dandakaranya region.

K'taka HC protects minor girl from forced marriage

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

The Karnataka High Court has come to the rescue of a minor girl whose parents were forcing her to discontinue her studies and get married.

According to the prosecution, the girl, aged 17 and a half years, from Gadag district wanted to pursue further studies, but her parents started forcing her for marriage. Fed up with this, she went to Goa and started staying with her brother.

However, the counsel of the mother, who moved the court with habeas corpus petition, contended that the girl was kidnapped, but police have not registered the complaint.

Meanwhile, the parents of the girl submitted that they will not pressurise their daughter for marriage or to discontinue her studies, while requesting the court to send the girl with them. But, the girl who was present in court, submitted that she was not willing to go with them and is ready to go to a juvenile centre.

Keeping in mind the welfare of the girl and her safety, a division bench of Justice Sunil Dutt Yadav and Justice S Rachaiah directed the Circle Inspector of Police of Laxmeshwar in Gadag district to send the girl to a girls home in Gadag.

"She is being sent to the girls home till she attains majority or till she changes her mind to accompany her parents, whichever is earlier. The home should ensure that the girl continues with her studies," the court said in the order.

The Juvenile Authority should provide visitation rights to the parents of the girl if she is willing to see her parents, the court ordered while disposing of the habeas corpus petition.

K'taka among states in Tata's plan for semiconductor unit

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

IN a big boost to electronics manufacturing in Telangana, Tata Group is looking into the possibility of establishing a semiconductor assembly unit in the State.

Telangana is among the three southern States being considered by Tata Group, one of the biggest conglomerates, to set up an outsourced semiconductor assembly and test (OSAT) plant, the others being Tamil Nadu and Karnataka.

The group is already in talks with the three States to set up the plant with an investment of $300 million. An OSAT plant packages, assembles and tests foundry made silicon wafers, turning them into finished semiconductors chips, which will be of significant use for Tata Motors.

Sources said that the facility, which is likely to become functional in 2022, will create 4,000 jobs. The move by Tatas, which comes after shortage of chips and semiconductors particularly for the automobile industry, will boost 'Make in India' initiative.

Students stage a protest at Maurya Circle in Bengaluru on Monday | SHRIRAM BN

Complete course in time, demand law students

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

STUDENTS from colleges affiliated to Karnataka State Law University (KSLU) staged a protest at the city's Maurya Circle on Monday demanding that their three-year LLB course and five-year LLB course be completed in the stipulated time. Close to 100 protestors, including students and members of National Students' Union of India, participated in the protest. They also demanded the resignation of university Vice-Chancellor Eshwar Bhat.

A student from an affiliated college who is supposed to be in her second year (third semester), but is stuck because exams of the second semester are yet to be held, told TNIE that the last time she attended her second semester classes was at least two months ago.

"The delay is a matter of concern for students who want the three-year course to be completed in three years and not four years. "There is also confusion in terms of how students, who failed the first semester, will clear their arrears," she added.

Another second year student said, "Odd semester exams, which were supposed to be held in December 2020, were held in April this year. Second semester is eating into third semester and effectively the next year's schedule."

Second semester classes started in July and exams were expected to be held in October, considering the four-month delay seen in the first semester, but the dates are yet to be announced, the student said.

With or without exams, the students said the academic schedule should not be compromised, because they will also be at a disadvantage when compared with students from other universities who are already in the next year.

'Govt should not table anti-conversion bill'

SOME Hindu groups had charged them with engaging in illegal conversion. At least 40 pastors, who were conducting prayers in private halls, have stopped fearing attacks by right-wing groups for some time now, said Nanda Kumar, district superintendent of the Belagavi Methodist Church. While some Christian priests, including Nanda Kumar, said police officials in several parts of Belagavi had asked pastors to stop prayers in private halls to avoid confrontations, Belagavi Police Commissioner Thyagarajan told a delegation of Christian leaders who met him recently that the police had not issued any advisory or order to stop prayers in private halls.

According to Nandakumar, the police have told the prayer groups that only those denominations with churches will be allowed to pray. All others have stopped public prayers. Some are holding prayers in houses of "believers" and some are doing it online, he said.

Highlighting a recent incident, he said, "Pastor Cherian, who conducted prayers at a private place in Sadashiva Nagar, was attacked by a group of people and was locked up inside for several hours on charges that he indulged in illegal conversion. However, with the intervention of the police and other priests, we were able to get him freed later." An FIR has also been filed against Pastor Cherian on charges of illegal conversion, said Nanda Kumar.

Sources said that Christian priests have faced several attacks from right wing groups in the last one year in Belagavi region, but claime that the police did not come to their rescue. Instead, they asked to stop conducting public prayers. Another local priest said Christians were feeling let down by the State Government, given the way they were being treated. If any illegal conversion was taking place, as alleged by the right-wing groups, the police should certainly initiate action against those responsible, he said.

Senior Congress leader Ivan D'Souza condemned the halting of prayers in private halls and said, the police were trying to satisfy the government by doing such things.

DISTRICT AUTHORITIES UP SCREENING

PANICKED parents rushed to the school to take their children after news of the cluster broke out. After two students had tested positive a month ago, the school authorities recently decided to get Covid tests done for all 200 students. The Health Department conducted RT-PCR tests on the teaching staff and the reports have come back negative.

At the Chamarajanagar Medical Sciences Institute, six students tested Covid-positive and have been shifted to a designated hospital. College Dean Dr Sajeev Reddy had tested positive last week and is in home isolation. About 500 primary contacts of the students and staff were also tested and their reports are negative.

Meanwhile, the Hassan Deputy Commissioner has directed senior officials of the Health, Revenue and the police departments to strictly monitor and enforce Covid-19 rules to contain the spread. In Chamarajanagar too, the district administration has stepped up screening along the Kerala and Tamil Nadu borders and people without RT-PCR negative reports are not being allowed to enter the state.

MINDGAMES BEHIND MAMATA FRACTURE IN OPPOSITION UNITY

With the Trinamool Congress staying away from an opposition meeting called by the Congress ahead of the Winter Session of Parliament, the fracture in the anti-BJP unity appears beyond healing. Ironically, the person who sought to become the fulcrum of opposition consolidation earlier this year is creating fissures in its unity now. Mamata Banerjee had in June claimed her primary objective was opposition integration and was ambiguous about being the prime ministerial face in the 2024 elections. She was speaking from a position of strength as she had comprehensively trounced the BJP in the West Bengal polls, won a third consecutive term as chief minister and earned bragging rights to become the natural challenger to PM Narendra Modi's rule. Anti-BJP forces fretting at the lack of killer instinct in the Congress saw promise in her brand of politics that bundles welfare measures with street-fighting qualities and fiery rhetoric. But the fly in the ointment was her restricted sphere of influence as against the pan-India Congress footprint. So Mamata bought into the idea of quickly building her own national base by poaching, furthering the BJP's pursuit of a Congress-mukt Bharat.

The latest shock to the grand old party came from Meghalaya where 12 of its 17 legislators defected to the Trinamool. The desertions were induced just when the Congress was trying to find its bearings, cleaning up the mess in its state units, clumsily or otherwise. While the Trinamool sought to justify the defections claiming it could not wait endlessly for the grand old party to set its house in order, the fact remains that a re-energised Congress would torpedo Didi's ambitions to rule Delhi. Mamata is a wannabe PM in a hurry, but as Tripura's local body elections showed, the possibility of defectors conjuring up instant results is remote. There is no substitute to gaining people's trust through hard work.

The TMC is now trying to create an alternative Opposition grouping of non-Congress allies. It can be expected to be more animated than the Congress in disrupting Parliament, so as to strengthen the buzz around Mamata being the best bet to lead the entire Opposition. If only such matters are settled through lung power. No prizes for guessing who benefits big time from the rift.

TN'S POLICIES TO REVITALISE ECONOMY

The Tamil Nadu government led by M K Stalin is on a mission. Barely seven months in governance, he is making serious efforts to breathe life into the hitherto sagging state economy. He and the finance minister Palanivel Thiaga Rajan have reiterated that the target of $1 trillion by 2030 is not a pipe dream. Here are a few moves initiated by the government. The state is attempting to build a hub for the IT and fintech sectors. It recently unveiled a FinTech Policy to transform itself into a leading global destination for MNCs by 2025. It will offer incentives to firms starting operations in tier-2 and tier-3 cities. The government has also proposed to set up new IT parks in these cities. Simultaneously, TN has also unveiled an exclusive policy to develop the state as the top destination for data centres. Many large companies are already in the process of setting up their data centres in Chennai and surrounding areas. The state will also create a pool of skilled manpower in the sector.

While attracting IT and fintech companies, TN has not lost track of its industrial growth. The exit of Ford may have temporarily dented its image, but a recent investment conclave held in Coimbatore saw keen interest from many other companies. The CM inaugurated 10 projects with a cumulative investment of ₹13,928 crore and laid the foundation stone for another 13. Undoubtedly, the state is positioned to capture a significant slice of the potential market India has envisioned in the next 10 years. While pushing for new projects, the government is clear about its prime target: employment generation.

Meanwhile, the economic advisory council set up by the government, which includes the likes of Nobel laureate Esther Duflo and ex-RBI governor Raghuram Rajan, has begun its ground work. Let's hope that while revitalising the state economy, the council will also ensure that the benefits of the economic growth reach all segments of the society and help the state shrug off the long-prevalent freebie culture. Once in place, it will be a model worth emulating for other states.

It is in our national interest to expedite a policy shift and start vaccinating our kids. Regulatory agencies and policymakers must consider this with utmost urgency

The newest SARS-CoV-2 variant that may upset the relatively steady state of the present endemic prevalence of the Delta variant in India is the B.1.1.529. It was designated as a variant of concern (VOC) and named Omicron by the WHO on November 26. The variant was detected in the second week of November in South Africa. Since then, it has been detected in Israel (presumably imported from Malawi), Belgium (presumably from Egypt or Turkey), Hong Kong, the UK, Australia, Denmark and Holland (from South Africa) and Italy (from Mozambique).

The Omicron variant has over 30 mutations in the spike protein region that seem to confer two properties that render it worse than Delta. One, it is characterised by a very high viral load in infected people and consequently spreads faster. In Hong Kong, the viral spread was clearly airborne through aerosols generated by infected individuals shedding enormous quantities of the virus. Second, it infects people with vaccine-induced immunity that protects against other variants. In South Africa, it has spread to several persons who had previously received two doses of approved vaccines. This indicates that the virus may have antigenic drift worse than that of Alpha, Beta, Gamma and Delta variants. However, these preliminary assessments await confirmation. The large number of mutations plus the above two features were the reasons why WHO named it a variant of concern.

Thus, although genetically SARS-CoV-2, in its behaviour and potential for overcoming herd immunity, we must assume that it is a variant that may go around the world and possibly even replace the current predominant Delta variant. Unless we take immediate and important interventions, it can invade us very fast, with possible dire consequences. This is a red alert. The worst fear is the possibility of a third wave in India after the long lull of endemicity. Omicron does not seem to cause more severe disease than earlier variants, but it is too soon to be sure.

Our first defence is to prevent importation of the Omicron variant. The government was aware of this need, but instead of immediate action, the plan is to introduce strict screening of air passengers from December 1. In the interim, the variant could enter and spread. Will this delay turn out to be too little too late?

Air travellers arriving in India may be classified into three categories. All arrivals from the cluster of countries in Southern Africa are the first category. They must be subjected to the RT-PCR test on arrival, kept under strict quarantine for 72 hours, retested and released only if negative. The second test on the third day will detect those who had been infected but were tested too early and detection was missed. This would ensure that the inconvenience to uninfected travellers will be minimised to just three days. Those who are infected must stay in quarantine until their RT-PCR test turns negative.

The second category should consist of all travellers from other countries known to have been infected by Omicron. This list must be updated on a daily basis. The passengers must be tested on arrival and let free if negative with strict instructions for Covid-appropriate behaviour and a proviso that they will get retested three to four days later.

All international airports must be sufficiently staffed to collect samples and get tests done without any delay. Test results must be made available in the shortest possible time. A computerised system to track these individuals and record these events with easy access to all concerned has to be a public health priority. Those from non-infected countries constitute the third category. They carry none or minimal risk for Omicron importation and restrictions are unfair at this point. The current method of airport checking should be sufficient for now. They should report any Covid-like symptoms promptly to the designated authorities for immediate testing.

> Our defence strategy calls for vaccinating all, including children, who are currently not eligible. However, confronted with Omicron and the need to protect our people, we should not leave out a segment to become a reservoir that amplifies and transmits the virus

INSACOG, a consortium of 28 national laboratories to monitor the genomic variations in SARS-CoV-2, must ensure that all RT-PCR tests done in India will reliably detect the Omicron variant. It must also make sure that genotyping of all positive samples is done to detect the variant until clarity emerges on its altered properties and epidemiological consequences.

Although immune evasion (escape from previous vaccine-induced immunity) of VOCs is very unlikely, they acquire varying degrees of reduced susceptibility to vaccine-induced immunity. For now, we can assume that the high levels of immune response achieved from available vaccines will still protect us from severe illness caused by the breakthrough infection by Omicron, similar to the protection offered against the Delta variant. For achieving high-immunity levels, the current two dose schedule should be followed by a booster dose after a minimum of six months. There are recent reports of nursing and other students getting infected in clusters (presumably by the Delta variant) after rejoining in-person classes. This can get worse if the Omicron variant enters India.

So, our defence strategy calls for vaccinating all, including children, with two doses followed by booster doses after six months. Currently children are not eligible for vaccination by policy. However, confronted with the Omicron variant, and the need to protect our population, we should not leave out a segment to become a reservoir that amplifies and transmits the virus. It is in our national interest to expedite a policy shift and start vaccinating our children using certified vaccines.

National regulatory agencies and vaccine policymakers must consider these steps to be of utmost importance and urgency. The Union and state governments should urgently educate the public and set up systematic vaccination drives covering the urban areas first (at highest risk of spread from importations of Omicron variant) followed by the rural ones in a time-bound manner and on a war footing.

THE EARLIEST ROCK-CUT MONUMENTS IN INDIA

SRINIVAS SISTLA
Associate professor, Department of Fine Arts, Andhra University, Visakhapatnam

The Barabar hills in Bihar's Gaya district contains a unique group of man-made rock-cut caves (3rd century BCE) of great historical value and architectural and sculptural significance. At least three caves of the hill were surely excavated by Piyadasi i.e., King Asoka (r. c. 268–232 BCE) of the Maurya Empire. The caves of Sudama and Visvamitra were created in the 12th regnal year of Asoka, and the Karna Chaupar was made in his 19th regnal year. But the Lomas Rishi cave remained unfinished and hence also contains no edict of Asoka. However, the ground plan of the Sudama and Lomas Rishi caves are nearly identical, and therefore, many scholars consider the latter one to be also excavated during the Asokan period, probably sometime in the last 20 years of his reign. Further, in the nearby Nagarjuni hill, Asoka's grandson, Dasaratha (r. 232-224 BCE), had also excavated three caves on the occasion of his accession to the throne at Magadha (Patna), with each one bearing his edict. These three caves are known as the Gopika, Vadathi and Vapiya.

All the caves of the Barabar and Nagarjuni hills were donated as dwellings to Ajivika ascetics. It was an ancient Indian religion that however completely vanished after the 14th century. The religion was founded by Goshala Maskariputta, who was known to be a contemporary of Mahavira, the 24th Tirthankara of Jainism, and Gautama, the Buddha of Buddhism. Though nothing is known about the religious practices of the Ajivikas, K R Norman, an expert on Pali literature and the Asoka edicts, has said that these ascetics had worshipped the elephant. In this context, I take liberty to add that the name of one hill, naaga-arjuni, points to the divine White Elephant; for, the naaga means an 'elephant' (and also a 'serpent'), and arjuna means 'white colour'. In fact, the Barabar hilltop, divided into halves, appears like a pair of elephants that face each other while leaning onto the ground. The same natural feature, in my opinion, would invariably explain the name, baraabar, which means 'on par with one another'.

The Lomas Rishi cave remained unfinished most likely because of certain technical problems like the appearance of large cracks in the granite stone while the excavation was still in progress. The interior of all the caves, including one side of the Lomas Rishi, have been finely polished, a typical feature that is well-known as the hallmark of Mauryan art, as seen in Asoka pillars topped with the capital basements that bear animal figures like the elephant, bull, lion and perhaps also a horse. Visitors to the cave have remarked that the finely polished interior stone surface reflects every figure and form in front of it, almost like a mirror.

Of all the rock-cut structures, the Lomas Rishi cave stands apart, mainly because of the dwaara-torana (doorway embellishment), which has been carved with refined figures in relief. The motif of makara (crocodile) has been carved prominently on either end of the torana. These makaras appear almost like crocodiles with just a suggestion of a horn on the snout and with a reptilian tail having spines. Further, a row of 10 elephants are shown paying their homage to the stupa. The overall shape of the entrance is usually described as like the horseshoe, but more aptly as the gaja-prista-aakara (in the shape of an elephant's back). The arch is single-pointed with the lock knob at the top centre; a row of beams are carved as support below the arch, and many crisscross strips are also carved to suggest a window in between the arch and the panel with figures. Such architectural features clearly reflect the wooden buildings that were in vogue during the time of Asoka, and even perhaps earlier.

In India, the Barabar caves are the first known examples of rock-cut cave structures and led to the making of many similar monuments all across the country at a later period. The dwaara-torana of the Lomas Rishi cave later on evolved into various types of makaras—comprising parts of a crocodile, fish and elephant—and also the makara-torana that is around various iconographic representations of many divinities of Hinduism, Jainism and Buddhism.

British novelist E M Forster worked as private secretary of Tukojirao III, the Maharaja of Dewas in Madhya Pradesh, and seems to have either read about the Barabar caves or even visited them. He had introduced the caves in his novel, A Passage to India (1924), but under the fictional name of Marabar caves, where a significant event in the novel takes place. The incident in the movie (1984) of the same name, as far as I know, was filmed at Savandurga and the Ramadevarabetta caves near Ramnagar in Karnataka, but not at the Barabar caves.

Uddhav's adept steering

This is with reference to How Uddhav has surprised all (Nov 29). The successful completion of two years in office by the Maharashtra Vikas Aghadi (MVA) government in the western state is a feather in the cap of Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray. The coalition of three disparate parties, the Shiv Sena, Congress and NCP, was not expected to survive for long. But with his adept steering, Uddhav, a virtual greenhorn, has managed to run his government well and also earn kudos for Covid management. All efforts by the BJP to topple the government by using its dirty tricks department have failed so far. The irony is that had Bal Thackeray been alive, Uddhav might never have made it to the CM's chair as his father always preferred to wield the remote control.

Be a humble winner

The Bharatiya Kisan Union has genuine reason to be proud of the government 'surrendering' before the farmers' protests. But it should not be a cause for the BKU to turn arrogant. Rakesh Tikait can very well demand that the government bring a law on minimum support price, but his words of warning that "January 26 is not far and 4 lakh tractors and farmers all are there" and challenging the government to face a 'Republic Day Stir' do not suit a winner.

Mamata's national dream

The unimpressive performance of the Trinamool in the Tripura civic body elections is an indication that the popularity of the party is confined to West Bengal. Even in Mamata Banerjee's home state, the party won only because minorities wholeheartedly supported her. Her dream of making a national foray is difficult to achieve, at least in the near future.

Too many smokers in India

The International Commission to Reignite the Fight Against Smoking has recently released a report that says "India ranks second in the number of cigarette smokers aged between 16 and 64 years and is among the nations with one of the lowest quit rates for smoking." For long tobacco has been one of the leading causes of death in India. There is a belief among smokers that the activity keeps them brisk all through the day. On the contrary, smoking can make one lazy as it affects the area of the brain responsible for motivation. Cigarette smoking, no doubt, is a clear social menace, and if the smokers are unconcerned about their own health, let them at least not spoil that of non-smokers.

Bad light and the BCCI

The Test match between India and New Zealand ended in a draw. India could have won the match but for bad light on all the five days due to which a number of overs were lost. The BCCI should be blamed for this as it conducted the Test in Kanpur despite knowing that light fades early during winter in the northern part of India.

WHY China, why not India?" is a question debated in India without a credible answer. Asking an identical question, "Why China flew, India just grew?" Forbes magazine (2019) answered that it was because of the barrier-free autocracy in China and nightmare democracy in India. Forbes pointed out that in the 1980s India and China were on par, but by 2018, China's per capita income grew to 3.5 times India's. To drive home its point, Forbes compared how China constructed the Three Gorges Dam on Yangtze river with how India built the Narmada Dam.

Yangtze vs Narmada

The Three Gorges Dam flooded 13 cities, 140 towns, 1,350 villages and displaced 1.2 million people. Yet, China completed it in a decade. In contrast, the Narmada Dam flooded no city. Inundated no town. Impacted far less villages, just 178. And displaced less than 1/10 of the people the Chinese dam had. But how long did India take to complete the Narmada Dam? 48 years! Jawaharlal Nehru laid the foundation for it in 1961. The World Bank agreed to fund it in 1985, but went back after Narmada Bachao Andolan (NBA) began its agitation. The NBA moved the Supreme Court, which stayed construction in 1995. In 1999, the Court lifted the stay, limited the dam height to 88 metres, but later over 19 years, raised the height in five painful instalments — in 2000 to 90 metres, in 2002 to 95 metres, in 2004 to 110 metres, in 2006 to 122 metres, and in 2019 to 139 metres, its full capacity. Democratic India's Narmada Dam took five times longer to build compared to autocratic China's. Why, then, wouldn't China fly over just growing India, asked Forbes. But the magazine missed the wood for the trees. For 25 years (1989-2014) India had only rickety, compromising coalitions, which had debilitated the economy. This is what Forbes sadly missed.

4 elections, 7 PMs in 10 years

In 10 years, 1989-1999, when globalisation was opening the lucrative Western markets to the rest, India saw four parliamentary polls and as many governments with seven prime ministers. V P Singh, 11 months. Chandrashekhar, 4 months. Narasimha Rao, 5 years. Atal Bihari Vajpayee, 13 days. Deve Gowda, 11 months. Inder Gujral, 11 months. And Vajpayee again, 13 months. Would the West look at India, the duration of whose governments were measured in months and days, instead of China, which was firmly under one man, Deng Xiaoping? Hoping to make the stable China a democracy rather than attempt to make the Indian democracy stable, the US began "positive engagement" with China in 1993. Things did improve for India between 1999 and 2014 when India had multiparty coalition governments for full terms. Vajpayee, who had better control over his coalition, had earlier even boldly opted for the Pokhran II explosion. But according to Sanjaya Baru, Dr Manmohan Singh's media advisor, Singh was just a proxy for Sonia Gandhi who exercised real power. How long would the 10 Indian governments that ruled between 1989 and 2104 last in office was always a question. Result, a whole generation of Indians had lost hope that India could ever have a stable government with absolute majority under a strong leader, like say Indira Gandhi. And so did the world. This swung the world to China.

Forbes magazine missed the wood for the trees. For 25 years (1989-2014) India had only rickety, compromising coalitions, which had debilitated the economy

Paradigm shift

In 2014, when Narendra Modi won an absolute majority after 30 years, the paradigm shifted and stunned the world. Not just Modi, Indian democracy gained the world's confidence to the extent that in 2019, US magazine Foreign Policy even said Indian democracy "is the silver lining, even golden lining of democracies" in the world. Had an elected Indian government with a majority of its own been in power in the 1990s, like in 2014, autocratic China would not have been the default choice of the West. When India changed hands from one PM to another seven times in 10 years, would the West need a better reason to turn to China? Result? The early bird China wrapped up 70 strategic partnerships by 2020. But including the US-India nuclear deal by Dr Singh in 2008 risking his government and Sonia's wrath, the late entrant India could manage only 20. No nation would choose India — whose government could fall the next day — as a long-term partner. This is what changed in 2014. The result was instant. Modi soon emerged as a global leader.

According to the monthly survey of US-based Morning Consult, since January 2020 till now, Modi remains at the top among 13 leaders from the US to Australia in the global leadership approval ratings. Long used to be led by others, India is now playing the lead role in the multilateral fora. The latest G7-plus, G20 meetings and the COP26 conclave testify to India's lead role. The world is now undoubtedly turning to India like it was turning to China in the 1990s. The UBS Evidence Lab CFO Study, Information Technology and Innovation Fund research, Bloomberg report and Qina Report point to the US and the West shifting away from China to India. Japan-Australia-India trade ministers held a virtual meeting in April 2021 to move away from China in 5G and semiconductor tech businesses. By the strategic Pokhran II, India shed its reservation about global power play. With the people of India giving him full majority, Modi has actually led India into the global power play.

Plans, to develop

Backed by the absolute majority from the people, Modi set such long-term goals, planned on such scales as not imagined in India earlier. Result, in the seven years from 2014, he succeeded in executing massive schemes like opening bank accounts for 43.81 cr unbanked poor; installing 11.5 cr public and private toilets; achieving six lakh-plus open defecation-free villages; building 2.33 lakh-km long rural roads; constructing 2.13 crore houses for the poor; electrifying all villages; providing electric connections to 2.81 cr homes; fixing 37.8 LED bulbs to reduce power consumption; laying optical fibre to 1.69 lakh villages; giving free cooking gas connections to 8.7 cr homes; extending medical insurance to 25.6 cr people, life insurance to 11.16 cr, crop insurance to 11.6 cr farms; putting cash directly in 11.77 cr farmers' bank accounts; issuing 22.81 cr soil health cards; lending to 33.8 cr micro businesses; bringing 3.42 cr people, plus 55 lakh self-employed under pension schemes; linking 1.71 cr farmers under e-market; connecting 1.85 cr students and youth with online courses for skilling; arranging 1.46 lakh post office payment banks in villages; issuing 129.5 cr Aadhaar identity cards to every Indian resident and 4.9 cr biometric identity certificates. The list goes on.

The speed with which he worked his plans is measured by just one fact. Till 2014 — in 64 years — the length of national highways built was 91,287 km; but in Modi's seven years alone it was 46,338 km — 50% more. Modi's development plans are intensely integrated. He could not have opened tens of crores of bank accounts for the unbanked without providing Aadhaar card to all, without connecting lakhs of villages by optical fibre, without lakhs of doorstep post office banks or without laying lakhs of kms of village roads. Nor without these could he have provided several tens of crores in medical insurance, crop insurance, life insurance, soil health cards, toilets, cooking gas connections, health cards or put cash in tens of crores of farmers' bank accounts. One would not have been possible without the other or others.

Purgatives, to detoxify

He also administered unpopular purgatives to the economy like demonetisation (DM), GST, bankruptcy law, privatisation of PSUs to make his long-term development plans work. Many fault DM for failing to catch black money hoarders red handed while exposing people to hardship. But what was missed was that DM was a multidimensional venture. It brought the informal and black trade into registered accounts. But for DM, the taxpayer base of India which was 3.79 cr till 2016, would not have shot up to 6.84 cr in 2018 — a rise of 80%. The tax-GDP ratio, too, would not have gone up. Had the parallel black trade continued as before DM, GST mop-up could have failed miserably. That could have threatened states' finances and the federal structure itself, even caused financial emergency. State Bank of India's two latest Ecowrap research reports (Nov 1 & Nov 8) have brought out the truth about the unpopular DM. It says because of DM, the Jan Dhan bank accounts rose by 5.7 cr; digital transitions from 182 per 10K in 2014 to 13,615 in 2020 — by 135 times; ATM network growth, that indicated cash drawls, has flattened; the savings in the Jan Dhan accounts has risen to ₹1.40 lakh cr.

It also says DM, GST and digital transactions have reduced the share of the informal economy from 54% in 2014 to 15-20% in 2020-21. The formalisation extended to 36 lakh jobs, says the Employee Provident Fund office, and to 5.7 cr unorganised workers — mostly in Bengal, Odisha, UP and Bihar in that order — as per government's E-Shram portal. Cash use of ₹1.2 lakh cr, agricultural credit of ₹4.6 lakh cr, and petrol/diesel purchase of ₹1 lakh cr have also been formalised through bank or digital transactions.

But for de-mon, the taxpayer base, which was 3.79 cr till 2016, would not have shot up to 6.84 cr in 2018 — a rise of 80%. The tax-GDP ratio, too, would not have gone up

The outcome of the formalisation is higher GST collections. For October 2021, GST collection is ₹1.30 lakh cr. Ecowrap (8.11.2021) also brings out the social benefits of the rise in Jan Dhan accounts and says it has reduced alcohol & tobacco consumption, wasteful spending and crime rates! Truth always emerges, but late.

Forbes went wrong

Integrating development plans with purgatives to detoxify and formalise the Indian economy reflected the Modi government's long term vision. But neither could have been possible without the other. And, both would have been impossible without bold leadership. Nothing would have been possible had Modi not won absolute majority for the second time. Forbes was wrong in faulting democracy. As the dynasty-led Congress declined, Indian democracy was in distress for a quarter century. Narration of what an absolute majority rule with bold leadership could do cannot be complete without saying how India handled the Covid challenge.

Covid challenge

Modi's greatest challenge came within months of winning the 2019 elections. The mysterious Covid-19 hit India. With no textbook model to counter it, Modi had to innovate, experiment with risky, unorthodox, unpopular ways to stop it, but failed. That disturbed the people, crashed the economy, inviting the Opposition to go ballistic. Seeing a golden chance to cow him down and India, China began spilling blood on the borders. Facing the worst challenge from within and outside, which was exploited every minute by the Opposition, he focussed on his Indradhanush Mission to produce Made in India vaccines for Indians. How important it is can be measured by the fact that in the past, foreign made vaccines took as long as 17 to 60 years to reach India. Had India depended on foreign-made Covid vaccines, first it would have become bankrupt paying for it, and next, it could never ever think of relief from Covid. Millions would have died. As Modi doggedly rooted for Made in India vaccines, the Opposition even cast doubts on its efficacy, causing vaccine hesitancy. Finally, India, one of the earliest, now the largest, producers of Covid vaccines, has vaccinated the largest number of people fully and partially. India has well confronted Covid compared to the best of the world. If the Indian economy is looking up today, credit should go to the Made in India vaccine.

This is where post-2014 India stands. Imagine a rickety, compromising coalition in its place with some proxy prime minister. Where would India have been with the Covid devastation from within and China firing at the border? This is the difference between India during 1989-2014 and after.

Opposition to use price rise, MSP as issues

BJP feels there is nothing to corner govt in Parliament after scrapping of farm laws, other parties list out matters

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @New Delhi

EVEN though the BJP thinks the Opposition has nothing to pressurise the government in Parliament after the cancellation of the farm laws, these parties are getting ready to bring up other issues.

"We are not supposed to speak on whether we have run out of issues against the BJP-led government, but we have a bunch of people-centric issues in hand," said a Congress MP.

Asked the same question, AIMIM chief Owaisi Asaduddin said the Opposition has no dearth of issues. "There are hard-hitting issues like inflation and unemployment to corner BJP in the upcoming Assembly elections." Asked if the BJP will gain politically after repealing the farm laws, especially in poll-bound states like Uttar Pradesh and Punjab, Owaisi said he does not think so.

As per sources, Opposition parties like Congress, TMC, NCP and the Left outfits have decided to make inflation, MSP, compensation to the families of 700 farmers who died during the protests and unemployment the major issues. The stand-off in China border and refusal of the government to conduct caste census may also become talking points.

The TMC has already made a list of 10 issues to take the fight to the saffron camp. Among these, CAA and NRC are the prominent ones.

Sonia Gandhi with other Congress leaders in Parliament on Monday | SHEKHAR YADAV

"But for us, inflation would be the main issue because it is impacting the lives of all sections of people. Matters like sharp rise in the price of LPG cylinders, petrol and diesel, other than CAA and NRC would also be taken up. It's not that there is nothing to talk about just because the farm laws have been repealed," said a senior leader of a Left party.

Members of the ruling party, however, thinks otherwise. "The three farm laws were brought without discussion. Similarly, they have now been repealed without discussion in either house of Parliament. The Opposition tried to make noise about it, but it actually took five minutes to cancel these three laws. This leaves them (Opposition) without any issue against the government. What can they talk about?" remarked a BJP Rajya Sabha MP, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Govt expenditure on health growing, shows NHA report

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

GOVERNMENT expenditure on health is gradually increasing, with people showing growing trust in public healthcare system. This is according to the fifth National Health Account (NHA) report for 2017-18, which was released on Monday by the National Health System Resource Centre (NHSRC).

The Ministry of Health and Family Welfare said in a statement that the share of government health expenditure in the total GDP of the country has increased from 1.15% in 2013-14 to 1.35% in 2017-18. Union Health Secretary Rajesh Bhushan stated that the share of government expenditure in total health expenditure has increased to 40.8% in 2017-18 from 28.6% in 2013-14. "And the per capita out-of-pocket expenditure (OOPE) has declined from ₹2,336 to ₹2,097 from 2013-14 to 2017-18." said the statement.

Bhushan said the NHA finding shows that the share of government expenditures on health has increased from 3.78% in 2013-14 to 5.12% in 2017-18. Besides, per capita government expenditures on health has also gone up from ₹1,042 in 2013-14 to ₹1,753 in 2017-18. As per NHA estimates, the share of primary healthcare in government health expenditure has also registered a rise from 51.1% in 2013-14 to 54.7% in 2017-18. In overall estimates, it has been stated that primary and secondary healthcare account for more than 80% of the current government health expenditure.

It was stated that between 2016-17 and 2017-18, the government's efforts to improve public healthcare are exhibited amply with OOPE, as a share of total health expenditure dwindled from 64.2% in 2013-14 to 48.8% in 2017-18. "That means the burden of expenditure on healthcare on the people is declining in a positive pace," said Bhushan. He added if the findings of NHA for 2014-15 and 2017-18 are compared, OOPE for government hospitals has declined by 50%.

Fall in OOPE of govt hospitals

Officials said that if the findings of NHA for 2014-15 and 2017-18 are compared, out-of-pocket expenditure (OOPE) for government hospitals has declined by 50%.

Farmer unions seek clarity on MSP committee

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Chandigarh

THIRTY-TWO farmer unions in Punjab on Monday demanded a legal guarantee for minimum support price (MSP) and said that the Centre should clear its stand about the committee to be formed on this. They announced that an emergency meeting of 42 farmer unions under Samyukt Kisan Morcha on December 1 will decide their future course of action. There will be another meeting on December 4.

They gave the Centre time till Tuesday to reply. "The committee the government will form on MSP should have equal representation of farmers. The government must clarify what will be the tenure of this committee. We also want that state governments should withdraw cases against farmers," said farmer leader Harmeet Singh Kadiyan after the meeting.

Create portal for Covid death compensation: SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

EXPRESSING concern over the slow pace of distribution of ex-gratia of ₹50,000 to the families of Covid-19 victims, the Supreme Court on Monday said an online portal should be created and the amount should be given without any hassle.

Taking into consideration the Centre's affidavit on Covid claims, Justices MR Shah and BV Nagarathna noted that in Kerala, 38,737 deaths were recorded and 6,116 claim forms were received, but amount disbursed is nil, due to lack of clarity on next of kin. In Maharashtra, 1,40,807 deaths were recorded and amount disbursed was nil, due to non release of the web application.

The bench pointed out to Solicitor General Tushar Mehta that in Haryana, 10,053 Covid deaths were recorded but only 1,800 claim forms were received. In Karnataka, there were 38,182 deaths and only 14,237 forms were received.

The Solicitor General told the bench, "In Gujarat, 10,000 deaths have been reported on the portal. We have started making payment in direct benefit transfer mode."

The top court directed all states to furnish to the Centre the particulars related to the claims and disbursal of Covid compensation. It suggested that a uniform and simplified process could be adopted across the country, for registration of claims and disbursal of compensation.

Sansad TV-Rajya Sabha mandatory

PARVEZ SULTAN @New Delhi

THE Ministry of Information and Broadcasting has issued fresh directions to all multi-system operators and cable operators to carry the mandatory channels, particularly Sansad TV-Rajya Sabha, on their networks.

The Central government recently notified Sansad TV-Rajya Sabha as a 'news and current affairs' channel. The advisory further says that violation will invite action.

"All MSOs and cable operators are accordingly directed to carry the mandatory channels appropriately in respective genres on their cable TV networks. Any violation of Section 8 of the Cable Act shall invite such action as provided in the Cable TV Act and the rules framed there under as well as the terms and conditions stipulated in the MSO permission, as the case may be," reads the advisory.

Roop Sharma, president of Cable Operators Federation of India (COFI), however, had said that instead of imposing state channels on viewers, the government must make efforts to improve content on its channels to attract viewership.

According to the association, there were 60-70,000 cable operators in the country before the Covid-19 outbreak and the number may vary because mergers take place frequently.

Panel cancels warrant against Param Bir Singh

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

IN a relief to former Mumbai police commissioner Param Bir Singh, the bailable warrant against him was cancelled on Monday as he appeared before the state-appointed Chandiwal commission – which is probing the corruption allegations against former Maharashtra home minister Anil Deshmukh.

The Chandiwal commission had issued the bailable warrant against Param Bir Singh on September 7. Justice K U Chandiwal also asked Singh to deposit ₹15,000 in the CM's relief fund. The former Mumbai police commissioner has been fined thrice for not appearing before the commission.

Singh, through his lawyer, filed an affidavit before the commission, reiterating that he has did not wish to depose before the commission. He also said that his earlier ₹100 crore collection charges in his letter to Maharashtra Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray against former Maharashtra home minister Anil Deshmukh were based on hearsay. He was not a first-hand witness but information on corruption was provided by police officers.

Meanwhile, dismissed assistant police inspector Sachin Waze, who was also produced before the commission on Monday, sat face to face with Singh and held discussions for about an hour. Anil Deshmukh's lawyer raised an objection to the meeting between Singh and Waze. He said the former Mumbai top cop may end up influencing Waze, who is a witness in the case.

The Chandiwal Commission was formed in March this year by the state government after Singh in his letter to Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray raised allegations of corruption against Deshmukh.

On November 25, Singh appeared before cops after the Supreme Court gave him protection from arrest.

TMC is main Oppn party, so act like one, Mamata tells MPs

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kolkata

THE Trinamool Congress will emerge the main anti-BJP political force in national politics, TMC supremo Mamata Banerjee said in the party's working committee meeting on Monday. She directed the party MPs to act accordingly during the winter session of Parliament.

"The thumping majority of the TMC in the recent Assembly polls showed clearly that no one can challenge the BJP other than our party. Many speakers in the meeting echoed the same in their speeches," said Derek O'Brien, national spokesperson of TMC. He said the next working committee meeting would be held in Delhi.

The TMC, which recently enrolled many leaders from other parties, especially the Congress, in Goa, Tripura, Meghalaya and Haryana, plans to expand its footprint outside Bengal ahead of the 2024 LS polls.

"We hope the defection from other parties will send a negative message to the vote-bank of the affected political outfits but will work in favour of the TMC. As a result, in the states where the Congress was main opponent of the BJP, our party will get elevated to the saffron camp's main contender," said a TMC leader, adding that there would be more defections in the coming days.

On Monday, the TMC skipped the meeting of opposition parties convened by the Congress, saying the grand old party has miserably failed to contest the BJP in recent elections.

During her three-day visit to Mumbai starting Tuesday, Mamata will meet NCP supremo Sharad Pawar and her Maharashtra counterpart Uddhav Thackeray.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Guwahati

A long-cherished dream of island dwellers of Majuli in Assam inched closer to reality on Monday when Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma inaugurated the construction of the Majuli-Jorhat bridge over the Brahmaputra.

Sarma said a cabinet committee had been constituted to monitor day-to-day progress of the project. It will remove hurdles that may come on the way. The government is aiming at inaugurating the bridge by November, 2025, he said.

"On February 28 this year (ahead of Assembly elections), Prime Minister Narendra Modi had given you the best gift by laying the foundation stone. Eight months later today, we have formally started the work," Sarma said at a programme at Majuli after launching the work.

He said the work would continue in a speedy manner and if not it gets affected by the pandemic, the bridge would be inaugurated on time. He heaped praise on Modi and Union Minister for Road Transport & Highways Nitin Gadkari for their support.

He also appreciated Union Minister Sarbananda Sonowal for his support. "I promise that your dream about Majuli will be fulfilled by all of us together," the CM said referring to Sonowal who was elected from the island before becoming then CM.

The 8.25 km-long bridge, which will connect the south bank of the mighty river with the island, will be constructed with central funds of ₹925.47 crore.

Sarma said another bridge would be constructed to connect Majuli with Lakhimpur on the north bank of the Brahmaputra. The entire project money of ₹750 crore will be spent by the state, he said.

JK statehood to be restored after killings end: BJP

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

J&K BJP general secretary Ashok Koul on Monday said statehood to Jammu and Kashmir would be restored when the selective killings end and normalcy is restored.

"Prime Minister Narendra Modi has told the floor of house (parliament) that statehood would be restored when situation improves in the state," Koul told reporters in north Kashmir's Bandipora.

On August 5, 2019, centre scrapped J&K's special status and bifurcated J&K state into two Union Territories – Jammu and Kashmir (with legislature) and Ladakh (without legislature).

Koul said when normalcy is restored, selective killings stop and common man walks freely without any fear, the statehood would be stored. He said PM Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah have said the statehood would be restored and "BJP also in favour of restoration of statehood".

Asked when elections would be held, Koul said elections would be held soon after the Delimitation Commission submits its report on delimitation of Assembly and parliamentary constituencies in J&K.

"The Delimitation Commission has to submit its report by March 2022," he said.

Home Minister Amit Shah during his visit to J&K last month had stated that after completion of delimitation, elections would be held and statehood restored.

OMICRON NOT YET DETECTED IN INDIA, SAYS ICMR EXPERT

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

EVEN as the World Health Organisation (WHO) has redflagged the new Omicron variant of SARS-CoV2 as a Variant of Concern (VoC), which poses a "very high" global risk and could have "severe consequences", India's apex medical research body, the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) has stated that there could be a "mild breakthrough but severity is not expected".

Dr Nivedita Gupta, scientist & in-charge (Virology Unit), Division of Epidemiology and Communicable Diseases, ICMR, told TNIE that while it is "early to say as yet (on Omicron) as lots needs to be studied for the variant, I don't see a reason for vaccines not to work as Omicron is still a SARS-CoV2 variant and most of us are vaccinated".

Dr Gupta said that to the best of her understanding, "Omicron is not detected in India yet. As soon as the strain is detected, it will immediately be declared on the INSACOG".

She added that the safety protocol -- two shots of Covid-19 vaccine, wearing of mask and social distancing -- should be strictly followed as maximum precaution to keep the virus at bay.

"Tracing and testing will help in mapping the spread of the virus. Continuous whole genome sequencing of a proportion of positive Covid-19 samples collected from geographically well-distributed sites will give insights into the new variants," she added.

Amarinder meets Khattar, confident of seat sharing

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

IN a political twist, former Punjab Chief Minister Amarinder Singh met Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Monday. The meeting came on a day the farm laws were repealed in Parliament. Amarinder is optimistic about sharing seats with BJP and forming government in Punjab.

Singh called it a courtesy meeting where political issues were not discussed. "This was a simple courtesy meeting." he said. After his unceremonious exit, Amarinder has floated his own party called Punjab Lok Congress. "When I go to Delhi, I will definitely talk to BJP's top leadership about seat sharing. We have our allies and will form the next government in Punjab," he said.

On the Parliament passing bills to repeal the three farm laws, Amarinder said, "The farmer agitation will end now, as the Parliament has passed the bills repealing the three laws. So there is no issue left. The Central government will also be sympathetically considering the six other demands of the farmers," he said.

Taking jibes at Sidhu, he said, "Sidhu says something else in the morning and something else in the evening"

Varavara Rao's interim medical bail extended till December 6

MUMBAI: The Bombay High Court on Monday extended till December 6 the time granted to poet-activist Varavara Rao, an accused in the Elgar Parishad-Maoist link case currently out on medical bail, to surrender before the Taloja prison authorities in Navi Mumbai.

A bench of Justices Nitin Jamdar and SV Kotwal extended Rao's time to surrender from December 2 to December 6 after the NIA failed to get Rao medically examined at the private Nanavati hospital in compliance with the previous order of the high court.

Rao, 83, had been granted interim bail for six months on medical grounds by the HC on February 22. He was scheduled to surrender and return to judicial custody on September 5.

Message to north Indian voters ahead of BMC polls

The BJP's decision to nominate Rajhans Singh as MLC is a bigger message to north Indian voters that the saffron party cares for them ahead of the crucial BMC election. Singh was elected unopposed to the council. This is also another clear message to senior north Indian leader Kripa Shankar Singh that the party is looking for a fresh face which is not tainted. Rajhans Singh, who started his career as a BMC corporator and was under the wing of Kripa Shankar Singh in Congress, has now expanded his base without the support of his old boss in a different party. Both of them had switched their loyalty to the saffron camp.

BJP central leadership unhappy with state unit

The high command of Bharatiya Janata Party is unhappy with its Maharashtra unit. They seem to have lost hope in the Maharashtra leadership and hence, decided to concentrate in other states to compensate the losses in Maharashtra. BJP leaders in Delhi has told their Maharashtra BJP office-bearers that they are neither able to topple the Maha Vikas Aghadi government nor whip up anti-government sentiments despite all resources at door. The central leadership of the saffron party conveyed this specific message and expressed its displeasure during a recent meeting in Delhi, saying, "Aapse na ho payega" (You won't be able to do it). The national leadership seems to have started looking for fresh faces who can give new a lease of life and energy to the party in the state.

State BJP to promote Marathas within party

The BJP in Maharashtra has undertaken different experiences to review its ebbing support base. In the power structure of RSS-BJP, the OBCs are often at the upper layer, while second-most prominence is given to Brahmins and third priority to dominant caste of a state. However, in the Fadnavis government, Brahmins were on top, Marathas second and OBCs at third layer. Now, the saffron party has decided to uplift Maratha leaders within the party by elevating them in the hierarchy. The appointment of Vinod Tawade as national general secretary of the party is part of this reorganisation.

MVA's 2 years in power and Ajit Pawar's silence

On the eve of completing two years in power in Maharashtra, most leaders of the three-party Maha Vikas Aghadi shared their experiences of how, despite having divergent ideologies, they formed the government. However, one man hasn't uttered a word over the high-voltage drama that transpired during the government formation. That is Deputy Chief Minister and NCP second in command Ajit Pawar. He hasn't clarified whether his early morning oath-taking with Devendra Fadnavis was with the permission of his uncle and NCP chief Sharad Pawar or not. The mystery is still there, but Ajit Pawar has said he will speak on the issue at the right time.

Inflation rises to highest in 29 yrs in Germany, Spain

Price rise fuelled by high energy costs burden people across Europe

BERLIN

GERMAN consumer prices hit a 29-year high in November, preliminary data showed on Monday, as soaring energy costs and supply chain bottlenecks weigh on Europe's top economy.

The annual inflation rate rose to 5.2 per cent, accelerating for the fifth month in a row, with the surge partially driven by a 22-per cent jump in energy prices, federal statistics agency Destatis said.

In October, prices had climbed by 4.5 per cent year-on-year. Germany's Bundesbank central bank said earlier this month that German inflation could spike to just under six per cent this year.

The higher cost-of-living is being experienced across the eurozone at the moment, which will add to the pressure on the European Central Bank to tighten its ultra-loose monetary policy.

Spain too reported highest level of inflation in nearly three decades on Monday.

Consumer prices jumped by 5.6 per cent, up from a 5.4 per cent increase in October, according to preliminary figures from national statistics institute.

That is its fastest pace since September 1992, when the rate was 5.8 per cent.

The ECB has so far insisted that the inflation surge in the 19-nation zone is transitory, and is wary of acting too soon and potentially stifling the pandemic recovery.

But Bundesbank chief Jens Weidmann, who is stepping down at the end of the year, has warned that the price hikes could last longer than expected.

Higher demand after the easing of coronavirus restrictions has pushed up energy prices and led to shortages of key materials and labour around the world.

The reverberations are hitting central and Eastern Europe especially hard (see graphic), where countries have some of the highest inflation rates in the 27-nation EU and people are struggling to buy food or fill their fuel tanks.

A butcher at the Budapest food market, Ildiko Vardos Serfozo, said she's seen a drop in business as customers head to multinational grocery chains that can offer discounts by buying in large wholesale quantities.

"Buyers are price sensitive and therefore often leave us behind, even if our products are high quality. Money talks," she said. "We notice that inflation is not good for us. ... I'm just glad my kids don't want to continue this family business, I don't see much future in it."

In nearby Poland, Barbara Grotowska, a 71-year-old pensioner, said outside a discount supermarket in the capital of Warsaw that she's been hit hardest by her garbage collection fee nearly tripling to 88 zlotys ($21). She also lamented that the cooking oil she uses has gone up by a third of its price, to 10 zlotys ($2.40). AP

Parag is Twitter's 1st Distinguished Engineer

NEW YORK

TWITTER announced on Monday that co-founder Jack Dorsey was stepping down immediately as CEO, with the company's Chief Technical Officer (CTO) Parag Agrawal replacing him.

Agrawal, who has a Bachelor's Degree in Computer Science and Engineering from the Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay, joined Twitter in 2011 as an ads engineer and has been the company's CTO since October 2017. As CTO, he has been responsible for Twitter's technical strategy.

Parag, who also holds a PhD in Computer Science from Stanford University, became

Twitter's first Distinguished Engineer, which the company credited for his work across revenue and consumer engineering, including his impact on the re-acceleration of audience growth in 2016 and 2017

Bret Taylor, Twitter's incoming Independent Board Chair said, "Parag understands Twitter and appreciates the Company's unique potential. He has been instrumental in tackling our most important priorities, including accelerating our development velocity, and I know he'll hit the ground running to strengthen execution and deliver results."

Soon after his appointment, Agarwal thanked the Board members for "their confidence in my leadership and Jack for his continued mentorship, support, and partnership."

"I look forward to building on everything we have accomplished under Jack's leadership and I am incredibly energised by the opportunities ahead. By continuing to improve our execution, we will deliver tremendous value for our customers and shareholders," he said.

Prior to joining Twitter, Parag did research internships at AT&T, Microsoft and Yahoo.

"In his capacity as CTO, he's focused on scaling a cohesive machine learning and AI approach across our consumer and revenue product and infrastructure teams," a Twitter official told CNBC.

"I joined this company 10 years ago when there were fewer than 1,000 employees. While it was a decade ago, those days feel like yesterday to me. I've walked in your shoes, I've seen the ups and downs, the challenges and obstacles, the wins and the mistakes," Parag said in letter to Twitter employees.

Swedish PM who quit hours after her appointment elected again

STOCKHOLM: Sweden's parliament on Monday elected Magdalena Andersson as the country's prime minister, the first woman to hold the post, five days after her first bid lasted only hours. Despite being a nation that has long championed gender equality, Sweden has never before had a woman as prime minister. Last week Andersson was elected by parliament but she had to resign just hours later after the Green Party quit her coalition government.

Police station torched in Pak after cops refuse to hand over blasphemy accused

ISLAMABAD

A mob burned a police station and four police posts overnight in northwest Pakistan after officers refused to hand over a mentally unstable man accused of desecrating Islam's holy book, the Quran, authorities said on Monday.

The crowd of up to 5,000 people surrounded the police station in Charsadda town in northwestern Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province on Sunday night, also setting fire to more than 30 cars.

On Monday morning, around 2,000 people remained outside the police station burning uniforms of officers.

"The mob stormed the police station asking to hand over the man to them so they could burn him alive like he burnt the Holy Koran," district police chief, Asif Bahadur told AFP.

The identity and religion of the accused has not been disclosed by police, Bahadur said.

"The motive behind burning the copy of the Holy Quran is still unknown but we are investigating."

Blasphemy is a hugely sensitive issue in Muslim-majority Pakistan, where even unproven allegations can stir mobs and violence. Rights groups say the legislation is often hijacked for personal vendettas, with minorities largely the target. A Christian couple was lynched then burnt in a kiln in Punjab in 2014 after being falsely accused of desecrating the Koran. A former Punjab governor Salman Taseer was gunned down by his bodyguard, Mumtaz Qadri, in Islamabad in 2011 over his call for blasphemy law reform. The brazen killing saw Qadri feted as a hero by Islamists.

Remains of cars torched by mob are seen in front of a damaged police station, in Mandani, in the Charsadda district of Pakistan on Monday | AP

Asia Bibi, a Pakistani Christian woman and a labourer from central Punjab province, was convicted of blasphemy in 2010 and was on death row until her acquittal in 2018, which prompted days of violent Islamist demonstrations. She and family have fled to Canada.

The country has frequently been paralysed in recent years by anti-blasphemy protests waged by the Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan party, often linked to the publishing of cartoons depicting the Prophet Mohammed by a French satirical magazine. AFP

RIGHTS VIOLATION

Nursing unions blame EU, 4 countries for Covid deaths

A coalition of unions representing more than 2.5 million nurses from 28 countries has accused the EU, UK, Norway, Switzerland, and Singapore of human rights violations over their blocking of a temporary waiver of corporate pharmaceutical intellectual property rights that they say would have ensured more equitable distribution of vaccines.

In a complaint addressed to Dr Tlaleng Mofokeng, the UN's Special Rapporteur on Physical and Mental Health, the nurses said "these countries have violated our rights and the rights of our patients — and caused the loss of countless lives" through "continued opposition to the waiver of WTO agreement on Trade-Related Intellectual Property Rights... resulting in the violation of human rights of peoples across the world."

More than 45 per cent of the world's population still has not received even one dose of the Covid-19 vaccine, the nurses' unions wrote. ENS

Xi pushes PLA to step up recruitment of new talent

BEIJING

CHINESE President Xi Jinping has stressed the need for the recruitment of new talent to support the rapid modernisation of the armed forces and win future wars amid reports that the military has committed more resources to enroll three lakh personnel for frontline positions. Talent holds the key to advancing the high-quality development of the Chinese armed forces, achieving victory in the military competition, and gaining the upper hand in future wars, Xi who heads the military besides the ruling Communist Party of China and the Presidency told a conference on military talent-related work held from Friday to Sunday. With a whopping $209 billion annual military budget, the Chinese military is modernising rapidly, carrying out organisational reforms and adding new weapon systems including hypersonic weapons. According to the US military, China recently launched a long-range missile that went around the world, dropped off a hypersonic glide vehicle which had glided all the way back to China and came close to hitting the target.

RBI takes control of Reliance Capital board

Says the firm is unable to address defaults in payment obligations to its creditors; will initiate insolvency process

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Monday superseded the board of Anil Ambani's Reliance Capital Ltd. (RCL) over defaults in payments and serious governance concerns and said that it will shortly initiate the process for resolution of the company under the insolvency and bankruptcy law.

The RBI said it has superseded the board, "in view of the defaults by RCL (Reliance Capital Ltd) in meeting the various payment obligations to its creditors and serious governance concerns which the board has not been able to address effectively".

RBI has appointed former executive director of Bank of Maharashtra Nageswar Rao Y as the administrator of RCL. Accordingly, RBI will apply to the National Company Law Tribunal for appointing an administrator for the insolvency resolution.

The company was in financial trouble for a long time, with a 'D', or default rating. As of March 31, 2021, the consolidated total assets stood at ₹64,878 crore, as per the company's annual report of 2021. Anil Ambani, who was once among the world's top ten richest, declared bankrupt in the UK in 2020. Already two of the companies under the RCL — Reliance Commercial Finance (RCF) and Reliance Home Finance (RHF) — are undergoing resolution under RBI's prudential framework for resolution of stressed assets. Authum Investment and Infrastructure has emerged as the successful bidder for both these firms. Experts claim this will not have any significant impact for the company or the sector.

"People were aware of the issues and RBI's decision did not come as a surprise. Hopefully, this should expedite the resolution," said Prakash Agarwal, Director & Head, Financial Institutions, Ind-Ra.

Prolonged tale of financial trouble

- Anil Ambani, who was once among the world's top ten richest, declared bankrupt in the UK in 2020
- Two firms of RCL — RCF and RHF — are already undergoing resolution

No proposal to recognise Bitcoin as currency: FM

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

FINANCE Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Monday said that the government has no proposal to recognise Bitcoin as a currency in the country. She also informed the Lok Sabha that the government does not collect data on Bitcoin transactions.

When asked whether the government has any proposal to recognise Bitcoin as a currency, the Finance Minister replied, "No, sir".

The government has listed Cryptocurrency and Regulation of Official Digital Currency Bill 2021 in the ongoing winter session of Parliament. The Bill seeks to ban all but a few cryptocurrencies to promote underlying technologies while allowing an official digital currency by RBI.

RBI is already in the process to introduce digital currency, and has sent a proposal to the finance ministry seeking amendment in the RBI Act, to include digital currency in the definition of 'bank note'.

"Government has received a proposal from Reserve Bank of India in Oct, 2021 for amendment to the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 to enhance the scope of the definition of 'bank note' to include currency in digital has been examining use cases and working out a phased implementation strategy for introduction of CBDC with little or no disruption," said Pankaj Chaudhary, Minister of State in the finance ministry, in a written reply to Lok Sabha.

He added the RBI is working out a phased implementation strategy. "Introduction of CBDC has the potential to provide significant benefits, such as reduced dependency on cash, higher seigniorage due to lower transaction costs, reduced settlement risk. Introduction of CBDC would also possibly lead to a more robust, efficient, trusted, regulated and legal tender-based payments option. There are also associated risks which need to be carefully evaluated against the potential benefits," said Chaudhary.

EXPANSION PLAN

Ather Energy to set up 2nd e-bike production facility in Tamil Nadu

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

EV scooter brand Ather Energy has commissioned its second manufacturing facility in Hosur to cater to the growing demand of its electric scooters — the 450X and 450 Plus. The company plans to manufacture 400,000 units per annum, a significant jump from its current capacity of 120,000 units.

Ather Energy had set up its first manufacturing facility at Hosur earlier this year.

Tarun Mehta, Co-Founder & CEO, Ather Energy said, "The EV demand has been shooting up across the country, and customers are coming in expecting electric scooters to wow them. This customer expectation is why our 450 series of electric scooters — the 450X and 450 Plus is seeing massive demand."

Since 2016, Hero MotoCorp has been investing in Ather Energy, and at present the two-wheeler company owns close to 35% stake in the EV brand.

Ather's expansion comes at a time when Ola Electric is struggling big time to commence deliveries of its maiden electric scooter. Earlier, Ola had announced that customers would get their deliveries by the end of November.

However, the company has now postponed the deliveries by 3 to 5 weeks. Till now, no customer has taken delivery of Ola's EVs- the S1 and the S1 Pro, which was unveiled on August 15.

Ather's experience centres are also scaling up rapidly, and its retail footprint is set to grow by six times in the coming quarters. Its current facility is operating at full capacity.

"We are commissioning the second plant to be ready for 2022. With this capacity expansion, Ather is well on its way to becoming the country's largest EV producer by next year," he added.

Ather Energy has been registering 20% month-on-month sales growth since November 2020. Ather has recorded a 3X increase in walk-ins, web inquiries and test rides from April-October 2021 and a 4X growth in vehicle booking in the period.

In October, Ather Energy registered its best-ever monthly sales numbers, registering 12-fold growth over last year and achieving revenue run rate of $100 million.

The company has committed to invest ₹650 crore in the next five years to enhance operational efficiency and production capacity to meet the exponential surge in demand.

Apart from EV production, the facility will also focus on manufacturing of lithium-ion batteries.

Xebia to double headcount in India

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

GLOBAL IT consultancy firm Xebia Global aims to double its India headcount from the present 1,600 to over 3,000 within 9-10 months. It is also looking at acquiring India-based firms.

"We have already done five acquisitions globally in the last 9 months, and it includes Appcino, a low-code consulting and technology firm, from India. We are planning 5-6 more acquisitions in the next 9 months and of which, two will be from India," Madhur Arya, COO of Xebia Global Services, said.

Jaipur-based Appcino delivers business applications and automation initiatives with deep domain and industry-leading low-code platforms.

With these acquisitions, the company is hopeful to increase its headcount in the country. "India acts as an offshore centre, as we have talented engineers here to work, and Xebia does most of its services from India," he said.

The company recently acquired one of Europe's largest IT companies PGS Software and Google Cloud Premier Partner g-company.

Its clients include, among others, Disney, Ahold Delhaize, Tesco, Philips, and ING bank. Xebia's revenues in the last four quarters crossed over 150 million euros. "We work with top banks in India and technology is playing a major role in the banking sector. Our revenue from India-based clients is around 25-30% and revenue that the group is generating from India to serve the customers globally is around 50%," Arya said, adding the aim is to increase India revenues by 40% by the next calendar year. Xebia also wants to open an office in Chennai.

Slice turns unicorn with $220 m fresh funding

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

FINTECH start-up Slice is the latest entrant to the country's unicorn club with the fresh funding round. It has raised $220 million in a Series B round and that values the company at over $1 billion. The new funding round was led by Tiger Global and New York-based global private equity and venture capital Insight Partners.

New and existing investors including Advent International's Sunley House Capital, Moore Strategic Ventures, Anfa, Gunosy, Blume Ventures, and 8i also participated in the round. Slice wants to use the funding to expand and strengthen its presence in the payments space, hire talent, and expand its product offerings.

According to industry estimates, only less than 35 million people have access to credit cards and the country's credit rating system covers only a fraction of this population. The start-up wants to address this gap through its Slice super card, a prepaid visa card with a credit line that allows hundreds of millions of Indians to get credit card-like benefits as well as to build their credit score, the start-up said.

Slice, which is shipping over 200,000 cards each month, recently opened doors to the new-to-credit population. They can start their financial journey with the newly introduced card with a limit of ₹2,000, it added.

Commenting on the new funding, Slice Founder and CEO Rajan Bajaj said, "Since the inception of the company, we've held a considerably different point of view from a typical start-up. The idea has never been to burn capital and acquire users forcefully, but to set up a sustainable and robust business. We have kept our heads down in the initial years and focused solely on simplifying the consumer journey and creating a cutting-edge risk underwriting system."

"Slice targets an underpenetrated market in India and allows users to make online payments, pay bills and more," said Insight Partners Managing Director Deven Parekh.

INDIA INC SEES 29% AVERAGE HIKE IN SALARY; UP TO 86% AT ENTRY LEVEL

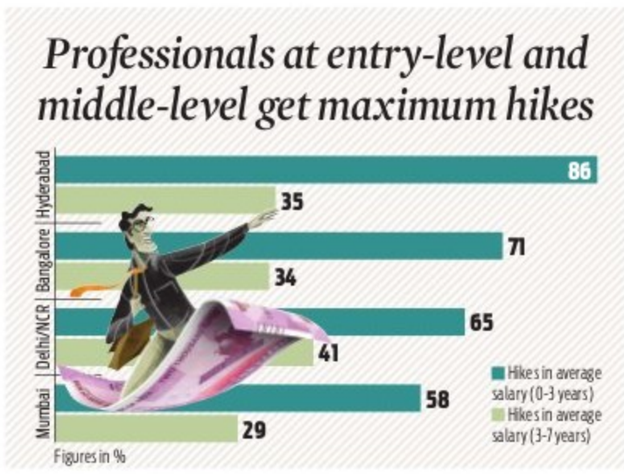
SAMIKSHA GOEL @ New Delhi

IT'S a favourable time for employees as a 29% upswing is being seen in the average salary hike offered to professionals during the first half of FY 2021-2022 as compared to the first half of FY 2020-FY2021.

An analysis of the internal data with talent solutions company CareerNet, based on 14,000 job offers that were rolled out during April – September '21, reveals professionals in the entry-level and middle-level, having 0-3 years and 3-7 years of work experience, are receiving the maximum hikes at 66% and 34% respectively on an average.

Candidates having 0-3 years of work experience, have received salary hikes of up to 86%, while for candidates having 3-7 years of work experience, Delhi/NCR recorded the highest salary hike at 41%. The increasing trend in salary hike is being observed by domestic employers, whereas, the hikes offered by global employers is comparatively less.

Professionals at entry-level and middle-level get maximum hikes



The average salaries offered by domestic employers have gone up by 34% and 36% for entry-level and middle-level candidates, while the global market recorded only 17% and 15% hikes in comparison, according to the report.

Explaining this sentiment across domestic employers, Anshuman Das, CEO & Co-Founder, CareerNet says, "The pandemic, which pushed firms to go completely online, appears to have boosted the demand for tech talent. There has also been an inflection point of start-ups, which demands talent. Small indigenous players have come out with innovative solutions to solve customer problems, which require expertise. They are bringing out unknown, powerful tech to solve market problems that are leading to the democratisation of technology as well as talent."

MGF vs Emaar case: Court asks for probe into ₹180-crore transaction

ANKITA UPADHYAY @ New Delhi

A Delhi court has dismissed a revision petition filed by MGF Development Ltd against the order of a Chief Metropolitan Magistrate (CMM) court involving Emaar India and MGF chairman Shravan Gupta. The trial court had directed to file a First Information Report (FIR) against MGF and other accused persons.

While dismissing the petition, Additional Sessions Judge Dharmender Rana said that evidently ₹180 crore seems to have exchanged hands without any apparent quid pro quo for the said transaction. The spectre of money laundering and tax evasion also needs to be addressed.

The company had filed a revision petition against a court order of April 16 in which the court had directed the police to register an FIR against MGF and other accused.

The case pertains to a complaint filed by Emaar India Ltd against MGF Development Ltd, Shravan Gupta and 11 others. As per the complaint, MGF Development induced Emaar India to enter into a joint development agreement with entities related / connected to the accused persons without disclosing their relationship with them.

Emaar later became aware of the fraudulent transactions of Gupta with Emaar India on one hand and other shell companies on the other hand. It was discovered that a large-scale fraud was perpetrated by the alleged companies and Gupta is alleged to have fraudulently acted as nominee of Emaar Properties in two projects and siphoned off ₹37,34,00,000 by virtue of joint development agreement for Palm Hills Projects through Nanny Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. and siphoned off ₹142,68,00,000 through joint development agreement for Imperial Garden Housing Project with Saum Infra Pvt. Ltd.

The court stated that considering the intricate maze of voluminous account books and a web of shell companies and clandestine route of payments, a detailed and thorough probe in the instant matter seems desirable.

Amazon demands investigation into Future Retail's financial transactions

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

E-COMMERCE giant Amazon has asked the independent directors to investigate several related-party transactions carried out by Kishore Biyani-led Future Retail (FRL) in 2019-20 and 2020-21.

Amazon has said that if its assumptions are correct, FRL can generate/recover ₹4,303 crore by unwinding the transactions that do not appear to have prudent commercial substance and in the best interests of FRL and its shareholders.

In a letter written on 24th November to the independent directors and audit committee of Future Retail, Amazon has alleged that review of the financial statements of FRL demonstrates that the funds raised in 2019-2020 were used chiefly towards extraordinary outflows.

This included payments towards security deposits, advances to suppliers and purchase of store infrastructure from related parties.

According to Amazon, total additional funds available with FRL in FY20 stood over ₹9,000 crore.

Amazon said that security deposits made by FRL increased by approximately 125% from FY19 to FY20 and continued around the same level in FY 2020-2021 (the Covid period). This is despite the number of stores reduced from 1,511 to 1,350 and then further reduced to 1,308 stores over successive financial years, it added.

"It appears that a number of properties may be leased from the Future group entities. The aforesaid data demonstrates a compelling reason to investigate and understand the commercial rationale, if any, for the substantial increase in security deposits in a year where business expansion was curtailed," the letter read.

Further, it asked directors to look into advances paid to suppliers.

"In FY20, FRL's advances to suppliers increased substantially (by approximately 184%), even though purchases during the financial year reduced compared to the previous financial years. This is even more curious because on the one hand, it appears that FRL delayed payments to creditors and on the other, it nearly doubled its advances to suppliers, that too, in a year, where most, if not all, businesses were conserving cash," read the letter.

Related-party transactions between FRL and FEL

Amazon highlighted that around March 2020, Future Enterprises Limited (FEL) received a capital advance from FRL amounting to ₹3,560 crore. In the same financial year, FRL purchased significant amounts of goods and services from FEL amounting to ₹3,472 crore.

Govt okays sale of CEL to Nandal Finance

THE government on Monday approved sale of Central Electronics Ltd to Nandal Finance and Leasing for ₹210 crore, marking the second strategic disinvestment of the current fiscal. Incorporated in 1974, CEL, under the Ministry of Science and Technology, is a pioneer in the field of Solar Photovoltaic (SPV) and has developed the technology with its own R&D efforts. It has also developed axle counter systems that are being used in railway signalling systems for safe running of trains.

The government had issued a request for Expressions of Interest on February 3, 2020, following which three EoIs were received. But only two companies -- Nandal Finance and Leasing Pvt Ltd and JPM Industries Ltd -- put in financial bids by October 12, 2021. While Nandal Finance and Leasing bid for ₹210 crore, JPM Industries quoted ₹190 crore.

Satwik-Chirag qualify for World Tour Finals

World No 11 duo of Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Chirag Shetty has become the first Indian men's doubles pair to qualify for the season-ending BWF World Tour Finals starting here on Wednesday. The pair finished at the semifinals of the Indonesia Open but made the cut after Japanese pairing of Akira Koga and Taichi Saito also lost in the last four at the Super 1000 tournament.

Under fading light, New Zealand hold on to tense draw as India manage to pick up only nine wickets in Kanpur

SAVE & SOUND

New Zealand's last pair managed to fend off 52 balls in low light to secure a draw in the first Test in Kanpur on Monday | AP

ASHIM SUNAM @ Bengaluru

WITH a light meter in his hand, umpire Nitin Menon garnered major attention in the final 30 minutes of the first Test between India vs New Zealand at the Green Park Stadium in Kanpur on Monday. After the completion of each over, the instrument was used to check the light if further play was possible. The pensive faces in both the camps narrated a clear picture with the home team in search of one last wicket to clinch the first Test while it was a case of survival for the Black Caps.

The seeping sun might have allowed India to sneak in an over or so, but the hosts had to settle for a thrilling draw with light having a final say in a thrilling finish. Debutant Rachin Ravindra at number eight and number 11 Ajaz Patel survived for a period of almost nine overs against the spin trio of R Ashwin (3/35), Ravindra Jadeja (4/40) and Axar Patel.

On a slow pitch, where wear and tear were missing,India bowlers need a special mention. Tracks in India open up and assist the spinners on the final day most often than not, but it was a different case in Kanpur. There was not much turn to attack the batters, nor there was bounce, testing the Indian bowlers to the core. To make matters difficult, even those balls, which produced edges, hardly carried to the close in fielders.

"We showed great composure and fighting spirit to be able to sort of work really hard in that final session. It was quite an unresponsive pitch even on the fifth day. The guys were very good and it was a good effort, considering that we were able to take eight wickets after lunch, three in that session and five in last session and really run the game close. With a little bit of luck, it would have gone our way as well. I think the guys really fought hard," head coach Dravid said.

It was a challenge for the spinners to even make a game out of it in the final day, especially when New Zealand batters stopped going for the target. As it has been the case throughout the Test, once the batters decided to stop going for runs and chose a defensive mode, it was always going to test the bowlers.

After a wicketless first session, Umesh Yadav dismissed William Somerville, which reflected the toil of the Indian bowlers as the night watchman saw out the first session completely. There was a ray of hope when Ashwin dismissed Tom Latham and Jadeja followed that with the wicket of Ross Taylor before tea.

And those hopes increased further after Henry Nicholls and Kane Williamson were out in quick succession in the last session. On a pitch where wickets don't fall in a heap, the accuracy of the Indian spinners were forcing the Kiwis to make a mistake. With Ashwin and Jadeja being relentless, the pressure was beginning to show on New Zealand who went from 126/4 to 155/9. But Rachin and Ajaz survived some nervy moments to keep their hopes hope of a series win alive.

The second Test will also mark the return the regular captain Virat Kohli, but Dravid kept his cards close to his chest when asked upon the team combination with Shreyas Iyer having made a big claim for a middle order berth. "We have not decided about the playing XI as of now. When we will go to Mumbai, we will have a look at the conditions, pitch, look at fitness. Virat will also be there, will also talk to him and then decide," said Dravid.

Ashwin closes in on Kapil Dev

With the wicket of Tom Latham, Ravichandran Ashwin went past Harbhajan Singh to become India's third highest wicket-taker in the list and he is now just 15 wickets behind Kapil Dev's tally of 434.

MOST TEST WICKETS AFTER 80 TEST MATCHES

450 M Muralidharan
410 R Ashwin
403 Richard Hadlee
402 Dale Steyn

Ever since Rahul (Dravid) bhai has taken over, he's kept saying how many wickets you take, how many runs you make in 10 years time, you won't remember them. It's the memories that matters so I want to have some special memories going forward in the next 3-4 years.
— R Ashwin

Stat of the art

Dravid rewards groundsmen

KANPUR: He has always been different from the rest and India's new head coach Rahul Dravid proved it once again by giving Green Park's groundstaff ₹ 35,000 for preparing a sporting pitch for the first Test. "We would like to make an official announcement. Mr Rahul Dravid has paid Rs 35,000 personally to our groundsmen," the UP Cricket Association announced after the game.

Ousted from academy once, Ankit now India's key player in midfield

FIROZ MIRZA @ Chennai

AROUND five years ago when he was 11-year-old, Ankit Pal found his name in the list of players being weeded out from the Madhya Pradesh Hockey Academy, Bhopal. He had got admission only a year back after clearing the selection trials. Regular absence from camp was cited as the reason.

Hurt and disappointed, Ankit, who hails from a modest background, spent the next year in his hometown Gwalior and made a comeback to the academy after shining in the 2017 trials.

Such was his determination to prove himself that he was not only picked up for the junior national camp in 2019 but also recently made his international debut at the ongoing FIH Men's Junior World Cup in Bhubaneswar, Odisha.

"Back then I had never stayed away from the family so I used to visit my family quite often. Once every month and that led to my ouster from the academy. Obviously, it was a bitter pill to swallow," the midfielder told this daily.

Ankit's father Santosh Pal is a halwai (an ordinary local confectioner), who works for different shops. He also cooks during marriages and other functions but fetches him a meagre income, which is hardly sufficient for the family of six. This put pressure on Ankit to perform. "Even my relatives started questioning my attitude that led to the ouster and that made me more determined to get back into the academy," said Ankit.

Lokendra Sharma, the MP Academy coach, was initially apprehensive when Ankit returned. However, this time the coach saw a completely different boy. "No doubt, he was skilful but he was also homesick and that's why I was doubtful when he came back. However, he proved everybody wrong. He had also grown taller in one year and that gave him an added advantage as a midfielder," informed Sharma.

Ankit was captaining MP Academy at the junior nationals in 2019 when coach Sharma received a call from Hockey India that his ward has been selected for the junior national camp. "It was a difficult decision for us as we were doing good under his leadership in the junior nationals but the then sports director believed Ankit should immediately join the camp. The decision meant he managed to break into the national core group, which helped him to earn a place in the team," added the coach.

Chennaiyin beat NorthEast in ISL

MARTIN JOSEPH @ Kochi

CHENNAIYIN coach Bozidar Bandovic had reflected ahead of the game against NorthEast United that his side needed to be more effective going forward. Strikes from Lallianzuala Chhangte (41) and skipper Anirudh Thapa (74) at the PJN Stadium in Fatorda left the head coach delighted as his team notched a second win on the trot to take them joint top of the table alongside ATK Mohun Bagan. VP Suhair's strike proved a mere consolation for NorthEast.

However, when the game started, it was NorthEast who looked assertive with their attacking play despite a poor start to the campaign. A lot of it was down to the return of their inspirational midfielder Federico Gallego who was pulling the strings for his team admirably. To their credit, Chennaiyin looked resolute at back and managed to keep NorthEast at bay.

India seniors showing juniors the way at the World Cup

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Bhubaneswar

AS India colts were preparing in Bhubaneswar for the junior World Cup, senior team skipper, Manpreet Singh, passed on a few tips to Vivek Sagar Prasad. Vivek, who has played many a match with Manpreet for the senior side, was captaining the juniors and Manpreet saw it as an opportunity to pass on a few messages. It helped that Manpreet could empathise with Vivek's position for the former was captain of the colts at the 2013 World Cup. So the midfielder knocked on Vivek's door to 'remain as a team' irrespective of 'wins or losses'. He urged Vivek, widely hailed to be the next Manpreet, to avoid 'pointing fingers' in case of a loss.

This isn't just some sort of bond between the captains of two teams at the World Cup. At some level, this is just a sub plot in wider, more meaningful relationships that's formed between most members of the junior and senior teams. It's now a forum where young tyros and old heads meet and dine together whilst talking about everything under the sun. Such relationships encourage trust, security and understanding.

So, in the hours after India were upset by France on the opening day of the World Cup, Manpreet, just to re-emphasise his message, again had a chat with the young midfielder. "I told him we could have done better," Manpreet told the media. "But that wasn't a time to blame anyone or finger-point. He had to lead the team on the field, make sure the players communicated with each other and showed unity. They need to believe in themselves." That pep talk clearly helped. In the next two games, Vivek & Co. communicated with each other, something that was sorely lacking against France, and used that as a base to beat Poland and Canada to advance to the quarterfinals.

Amid an endless loop of uncertainties and lockdowns in 2020, the senior team were stranded at the Sports Authority of India (SAI) campus in Bengaluru. Competitions were scratched, friendlies were being very difficult to organise and even if countries showed a willingness to play, visas weren't being issued. Having just beaten the Netherlands and Belgium in a two-week window in January and February, they believed they were genuine contenders to medal at the Olympics. This setback hurt them.

Even as other teams started to cross borders and play, the senior Indian team were left to play 'internal squad' matches. Visas were hard to come by so the status quo continued. That's when the senior management decided to use the services of the junior team. "Both sides needed games so why not play against each other," was the thinking behind it. Once that novelty wore off, senior team chief coach, Graham Reid, decided to experiment. The junior team changed its shape and identity to play like India's potential Olympic rivals.

A bond quickly started to develop. Normally, there is a degree of separation between the senior and junior programmes. The pandemic kind of blurred that natural hierarchy between seniors and juniors because they started sharing the same space as the seniors day after day. The juniors understood that the seniors were there for them and the seniors understood the kind of problems the juniors might face because they themselves had gone through the exact process a few years ago. Harmanpreet Singh, who knows a lot of the colts like the back of his own hand, breaks the relationship down. "Whenever we used to spot something, we spoke to them. If they had any problem, they reached out to us. They just needed some fine-tuning, not a lot of work. Overall, they are very good."

Harmanpreet has also sort of become an important figure in the growth story of the colts because of the prominence of the dragflickers in this team. Vice-captain Sanjay, for instance, even has that same style as the Tokyo medallist, five years Sanjay's senior. The two of them have exchanged copious amounts of notes over the finer science of dragflicking since March 2020. "Harman keeps telling us the new skills we can learn," Sanjay says.

****

Manpreet & Co, who are preparing for the Asian Champions Trophy, are also in Bhubaneswar. They train in the mornings but that hasn't stopped a few of them from watching the colts in action. They were at the Kalinga Stadium for all three group games, silently watching from the stands. Both Manpreet and Harman watched the juniors like hawks before passing on their feedback. "We are analysing the games and after it's over, we are giving the players our feedback," the former says.

Baby steps toward treaty to fight the next pandemic

HEALTH

GENEVA: The world must study the wreckage of Covid-19 and say "never again" by striking a pandemic preparedness treaty, the WHO said Monday as countries gathered to build a new accord. WHO director-general Tedros Ghebreyesus said another disastrous pandemic was bound to happen unless countries showed the resolve to strengthen global defences.

Nations are meeting in Geneva from Monday to Wednesday to discuss an international agreement setting out how to handle the next pandemic – which experts fear is only a matter of time.

The informal agreement is a huge step, and now it's time to capitalise on this momentum to make the world a safer place

Charles Michel, European Council

The gathering comes with the planet still besieged by Covid-19, nearly two years on from the first recorded cases, and now shaken by Omicron, the new Covid variant of concern. WHO member states reached a consensus Sunday on kick-starting the process towards a pandemic treaty. The draft decision was secured after countries agreed to compromise -- notably the US, which is luke-warm on whether the outcome needs to be a legally-binding treaty. The decision should be formalised on Wednesday.

"The emergence of the highly-mutated Omicron variant underlines just how perilous and precarious our situation is," Tedros told world leaders at the start of the three-day gathering. "Omicron demonstrates just why the world needs a new accord on pandemics. Omicron's very emergence is another reminder that although many of us might think we're done with Covid-19, it's not done with us. It will all happen again unless you can come together to say with one voice: never again." This meeting of the World Health Assembly -- the WHO's decision-making body comprising all 194 member states -- is an unprecedented special session on how to handle the next pandemic. It should thrash out how far countries are prepared to go towards legally-binding commitments on topics such as equitable vaccine, knowledge-sharing and financing structures.

The final outcome of the process should come into force in 2024. Chilean President Sebastian Pinera said the world was unprepared for Covid-19 and "for that weakness, we all paid a great price. "Steps must be taken to ensure that this will not happen again, that when the next pandemic comes, and it will come, it will find us better prepared," he said. Kazakhstan's President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev stressed: "We need to close the gaps that made us vulnerable to the virus in the first place."

The draft decision says WHO members agree to establish an intergovernmental negotiating body "to draft and negotiate a WHO convention, agreement or other international instrument on pandemic prevention, preparedness and response".

Also suggests heightened surveillance to contain spread; G7 nations praise South Africa during meet on new strain

COVID

GENEVA/LONDON: The WHO on Monday warned the new Covid-19 Omicron variant posed a very high risk globally. The UN health agency's assessment echoed during the G7 nations' Monday dialogue, which asserted Omicron was highly transmissible and required urgent action.

While uncertainty surrounded the danger and contagion levels of the new strain, South Africa maintained the cases driven by Omicron were milder than those by Delta variant and required no hospitalization.

Against travel ban

While cautioning the likelihood of potential spread of Omicron was high globally, the world health body suggested enhanced surveillance and accelerated vaccination as measures to contain the spread. However, it also cautioned against travel bans, fearing that blocking travel from countries where new variants are first spotted could be unfair and dissuade surveillance.

South Africa, which has accused other countries of isolating it for its proactive stance on Omicron, termed it "regrettable... (and) sad" that fellow African nations had joined a rush by wealthy countries to impose travel bans over the new Covid variant. "It is quite regrettable, very unfortunate, and I will even say sad, to be talking about travel restrictions imposed by a fellow African country," foreign ministry spokesman Clayson Monyela said.

South Africa praised

Meanwhile, the G7 nations – the UK, US, Japan, Italy, Germany, Canada and France – praised South Africa's exemplary work in both detecting the strain and alerting others to it. Underlining the "strategic relevance of ensuring access to vaccines", they pledged to hold to their donation commitments.

Travellers escape isolation

Dutch authorities placed a couple in isolation in hospital after they made a bid to abscond from a quarantine hotel for Covid-positive passengers from South Africa. The fugitives, a 30-year-old Spanish man and a 28-year-old Portuguese woman, were found by the border police on a Spain-bound plane at Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport on Sunday and arrested.

Pfizer working on vax to target new variant

Pfizer has started working on a version of its vaccine specifically targeting the Omicron variant in case the current inoculation is not effective, the US drugmaker's CEO Albert Bourla said on Monday. Bourla told CNBC his company on Friday began testing the current vaccine against the Omicron variant, which was first reported in South Africa.

All adults made eligible for booster shots in UK

All adults in Britain will now be able to get a third Covid jab, a government scientific advisory body said Monday, as concern mounted about the spread of the new Omicron variant. "We're advising that the booster programme should now be extended to adults aged 18 to 39 years old," said Wei Shen Lim, of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation.

Sputnik targets the new strain, says manufacturer

The backers of the Russian Covid-19 vaccine Sputnik V said Monday that the jab is effective against the new Omicron coronavirus variant but they were also developing an adapted booster. The Russian Direct Investment Fund (RDIF), which supported the vaccine's development, said that the centre "has already begun developing the new version of Sputnik vaccine adapted to Omicron."

Miss Universe aspirant tests positive in Israel

INFECTION

JERUSALEM: Organizers of the Miss Universe pageant said Monday that a contestant tested positive for COVID-19 after arriving in Israel, which is pressing ahead with plans to host the pageant despite closing its borders in the face of a newly detected variant. They did not identify the contestant, and it was unclear if she had the omicron strain, which has raised alarm worldwide and was detected in a traveler returning to Israel last week.

The Miss Universe Organization said most of the 80 contestants have arrived in Israel and that the event will be held as planned on Dec. 12 in the southern city of Eilat with strict coronavirus protocols. The contestants will compete in national costumes, evening gowns and swimwear, and will answer a series of interview questions.

Fauci says Biden may not raise restrictions

HEALTH

WASHINGTON: US President Joe Biden is set to urge Americans to get vaccinated and receive a booster shot as he seeks to quell concerns over Omicron. However, he is unlikely to push for more restrictions, his chief medical adviser Dr Anthony Fauci said on Monday. The comments came on a day Canada confirmed its first Omicron case.

Fauci said there were as yet no cases of the variant identified in the US but that it was "inevitable" that it would make its way into the country eventually. Speaking on ABC's Good Morning America, Fauci said scientists hope to know in the next week or two how well the existing Covid-19 vaccines protect against the variant, and how dangerous it is compared to earlier strains.

"No confirmed cases (of Omicron) but obviously we're on high alert," Fauci said on ABC's "Good Morning America." Fauci also encouraged people to get coronavirus vaccines or boosters quickly, rather than waiting for pharmaceutical companies to tailor doses specifically to the Omicron variant.

"A variant like this, although there's a lot we don't know about it, one thing we do know is that vaccinated people do much, much better than unvaccinated people, and particularly when you boost someone," he said.

"When you get vaccinated and boosted and your level (of antibodies) goes way up, you're going to have some degree of protection, at least against severe disease," Fauci said. "I would strongly suggest you get boosted now."

Meanwhile, Dutch health authorities have found another case of the new Covid-19 variant among passengers from South Africa, bringing the total to 14, the health minister said on Monday. "With the help of sequencing, it has now been confirmed in 14 people that it is the Omicron variant," Health Minister Hugo de Jonge said in a letter to parliament. Analysis of the samples "suggests that the people affected may have the virus most likely contracted in several places and not during the flight", de Jonge said.

Flying taxis at Paris Games

TECH

From The Jetsons to Harry Potter, flying taxis are a staple feature of many science fiction blockbusters. But the futuristic vehicles are inching closer to becoming a reality, and could even be used to shuttle sports fans across Paris during the 2024 Olympic Games. French officials have announced that Paris will begin testing electric air taxis at a test sight just outside Paris. The ultimate goal is to create at least two flights paths to ease congestion during the summer games, according to the officials. While details of the flying taxis themselves remain unclear, several large firms will be involved in the tests at the Pontoise airfield. This includes Volocopter, Airbus, Vertical Aerospace and Ascendance.

Endangered rhinos shifted

CONSERVATION

Thirty endangered white rhinos arrived in Rwanda on Monday after a long journey from South Africa in a Boeing 747, conservationists said, hailing it as the largest single transfer of the species ever undertaken. The majestic animals, which can weigh up to two tonnes, travelled some 3,400 km from South Africa's Phinda Private Game Reserve as part of a programme to replenish the species' population, decimated by poaching since the 1970s. Once plentiful across sub-Saharan Africa, white rhino suffered first from hunting by European settlers, and later a poaching epidemic which largely wiped them out. The rhinos began their 40-hour journey to Akagera National Park in eastern Rwanda following months of preparation.

TALKING TRAVEL

Suitcases are packed, and hotels, private villas are booked. After a quiet 2020, Bengalureans are heading out this holiday season with a vengeance

ANILA KURIAN

AFTER more than a year of being cooped up at home, Bengalureans are ready to go just about anywhere. Be it to local spots or international destinations, people are game for them all. As 2021 comes to a close, people are planning year-end vacations. And travel bookings have skyrocketed. In fact, according to reports from online travel company EaseMyTrip, there has been a 450 per cent jump in advance bookings for Christmas week when compared to the same period last year.

For those looking at domestic travel, places like Kashmir, Goa, Leh and Srinagar are top preferences. Travel agents are finding them to have the highest rise in year-end advance bookings. "Maldives and Dubai are the most preferred international destinations. The Middle East is a popular destination this year-end as flights and hotels are running with almost full capacity," explains Rikant Pittie, co-founder of EaseMyTrip, adding that the Expo 2020 in Dubai is one of the major reasons for the hike.

Travel agents have also seen significant contributors to the growth of travel due to the ongoing wedding season. Pre-pandemic, the average duration of stay was about three days. Now, it is 4 to 5 days. "We've been seeing an increased demand for private properties such as villas as customers find them more secure and safe during these unprecedented times," says Pitte.

Daniel D'souza, president and country head, SOTC Travel company, says that with the onset of the honeymoon season, travel has picked up tremendously. "Egypt and Turkey are often enquired about. With Singapore and Mauritius opening their borders, and the honeymoon season going on, we are seeing an uptick in queries from various segments. In fact, Nepal and Sri Lanka have been garnering interest as well," he says.

Making this year's travel plans different are not just travellers but also marathoners. Gauri Jayaram, founder of Active Holiday Company, says, "All the hotel prices are significantly high as we are currently contracting for our 2022 marathon groups. The prices are anything between 30 to 50 per cent more than in 2019." She adds that corporate events like conferences, events and conventions are back, causing high demand with limited supply.

For the working class, the hybrid work structure or work-from-home option has been a boon. Travel blogger Tapash Kumar Sahu says that workcations are still trending. "You just need good Wi-Fi and as long as work gets done, you don't have to worry about leave. Planning such trips around the weekend is the best option," he says. Airbnb is most preferred these days, says Sahu, adding, "While air travel is good for long distances, wherever possible, driving down in one's own vehicle is preferred. This way, you can carry more things, move around from one location to another and feel safe."

Sunset in Goa

For the year-end plans, the blogger points out that though people are travelling to hotspots like Goa, they are still finding private properties to stay at so as to avoid the crowd.

But what was meant to be an alternative to handle the massive traffic jams, turned out to be a hardcore passion.

Jayaraman is now an ardent biker who is on a mission to go that extra mile to find peace after a stressful work day. Working as a consultant — obstetrics and gynaecology at Manipal Hospital, Old Airport Road, Jayaraman switched to a two-wheeler only to steer clear of the traffic. It was one of her close friends who encouraged her to pursue biking seriously. And there's been no turning back. However, like any other troubled start, Jayaraman faced discouragement from family during the initial days. "My mother and husband did not approve of my biking. They were worried about injuries and accidents which might put my job at risk. However, I decided to pursue biking only to experience 'me-time'," says Jayaraman.

Jayaraman is a sportsperson by nature. From playing basketball to participating in athletics during her schooling days in Mumbai, she experimented with sports to always test her limits. Applying the same formula to biking, Jayaraman has so far covered over 14,000 km on her BMW GS 310 in the last two years, spanning three states, Tamil Nadu, Karnataka and Kerala. She usually rides only when her work permits, but ensures she completes a 400-km ride once a month. "I spent the initial few years learning to ride. However, I actively started biking in the last three years. As part of the Wild Off Roaders bike group, we organise rides every month. Since I am the only woman in the group, I get pampered and ragged," says the 50-year-old, who believes the toughest ride so far was at the Charmadi Ghat, en route Mangaluru.

Interestingly, in early January 2021, Jayaraman was to get her first dose of vaccine as a frontline worker. She was in Masinagudi (near Mudumalai Tiger Reserve in Tamil Nadu) when the vaccination drive was taking place. "I left by noon and reached Bengaluru by evening on my bike and got my jab. If not for that ride I might have missed the slot," says Jayaraman, who is now planning a trip to Leh-Ladakh next year.

What have been her biggest takeaways from biking? "I bike to push my limits. Team spirit and networking with different people have been my biggest learnings from biking. My passion for riding has multiplied my confidence and has added so much more value to me as an individual," she says.

FIT BIT

HANUMANASANA

(SPLITS POSE)

Hanumanasana is named after Lord Hanuman (Hindu Monkey God), hence also called the Monkey Pose. It is a challenging seated pose that requires the work of the hips and hamstrings, while balancing the upper body on the pelvis. With the hips and the legs moving in opposite directions, the hip flexors and hamstrings need to be strong and flexible to attain the required balance and stability. Splits Pose helps boost energy in the body and hence can be included in flow yoga sequences. It helps to stimulate both the Muladhara (root) and Svadhisthana (spleen or sacral) chakras.

STEPS

- Warm up the legs wtih Ardha Hanumanasana.
- Then, stretch the left leg in front with the toes pulled upwards and facing you.
- While exhaling stretch the right leg behind taking support of the hands placed on the sides on the floor or yoga block/bolster.
- While moving the right leg towards the floor, ensure the left leg stays strong balancing on the heels.
- Exhale completely once the right leg rests on the ground settling the right knee, upper foot, lower thighs on the ground.
- Stretch the back leg completely until the perineum is closer to the floor (it may not rest at first, but with practice it will).
- Inhale, stretch the spine, point the left toes up.
- Join both the palms in the centre of your chest in Anjali Mudra. Breathe naturally and feel connected to the ground.
- Hold the posture for up to 60 seconds. Then, switch the legs.
- Release and relax.

BENEFITS

- Very good workout for leg muscles.
- Increases the flexibility of the body especially of calves, hamstrings, pelvis and hips.
- Helps relieve menstrual cramps.
- Abdominal organs are massaged hence improving their functioning.
- Beneficial for sportspersons.
- Helpful in treating and preventing sexual problems.
- Uterine muscles get toned which eases childbirth.
- Improves the health of your knees and ankles.
- Provides optimal toning to the back muscles.
- People suffering from stress and anxiety helps to calm the mind.
- Balance the nervous system.

LIMITATIONS

- Pregnant women and people with lower back pain must avoid this.
- If you have had a hip replacement, or leg or shoulder injury, avoid this.
- If you have pain in your groin area or hamstring don't stretch beyond a limit.

Journey towards the absolute

DURING a lecture on 'The question of applicability and avant-gardism in literature' that I attended, the orator, a famous octogenarian author in Kannada language, said: "I am in great dilemma when it comes to considering what is 'modern' and what is 'ancient'. Is it the 60s' and 70s' when we were young and part of a social revolution rejecting casteism, class differences and sexual taboos or is it this decade, where more and more youngsters are being drawn towards antique social structure and restrictions? Is it limited to progression of a timeline or is it about evolution of sensibilities?"

His words reminded me of two books. One was Ismat Chughtai's famed novel Terhi Lakeer (The Crooked Line), a Bildungsroman wherein the life of the central character keeps clashing with the Indian independence movement. The second was an extraordinary concoction of private and public crises of characters showcased in Annie Zaidi's novel Prelude to a Riot - about the turn of events in a small, scenic town that seems to have reached a boiling point, waiting to explode. Juxtaposing private lives with the politics of the times, especially the responses of a younger generation to various facets real-time issues has been accomplished by Zaidi in a seamless manner.

An important magnitude of post-colonial literary works has been the acknowledgement and reappearance of women's experiences after being concealed from the histories of colonial societies. Many of the stereotypical representations of Indian women have been powerfully rejected in a flood of women's writings. Many women writers have placed women at the centre of history, as makers and agents of history, not mute witnesses to it.

All across the world, especially in the Indian sub-continent, the act of writing is for a woman essentially an act of breaking her silence because her repressive patriarchal/racial society has taught her to be culturally silent. The feminine is essentially the marginalised consciousness that operates on the periphery of patriarchal discourse. Tehmina Durrani, a Pakistani English authoress, in her fictional autobiography My Feudal Lord describes her traumatic marital life with Gulam Mustafa Khar, an important politician in the Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto government, who later became the Chief Minister of Punjab, who was a wife abuser on a personal front. This autobiographical novel won the Italian Marrissa Bellasario prize and was later translated into several languages. It maps Tehmina's progress from an ordinary elitist housewife to an emancipated human being contesting for equal rights and empowerment.

Progressive feminist politics has constantly rejected the alluring and constricting boundaries regulating the experiences or identities of women. The generalisation of sexual difference or shared subordination negates the multiple yet specific overlapping entities of women across the world – be it political, cultural, historical or economical. It is vital that the very confines and binaries that feminism pursues to challenge be examined through these lenses. My Feudal Lord, Terhi Lakeer and Prelude to a Riot are fearless, breathtaking and full of anticipation because they record many such unheard voices.

INVITES THAT TELL YOUR STORY

Darshini Sundar talks about her journey into the wedding industry and the enormous world of personalised invites

KANNALMOZHI KABILAN

THE (barely) post-pandemic wedding rage might have some experiencing great joy, some questioning the sanity of their loved ones, and others still contemplating the vagaries of their own existence. But for Darshini Sundar, graphic designer and artist, it has brought in non-stop work in the form of ultra-personalised wedding invites. "Everybody is getting married; I've worked for six weddings in this November-December period and I have two more lined up. Three weddings are happening at the same time in three different locations. This season has been insane," she admits.

While designing wedding invites might sound like a breeze, the industry has evolved to accommodate a great amount of customisation and this has been quite demanding on her artistic prowess, says Darshini. "We want everything to be personal; this takes personal to a completely new level. The invites are designed based on where the bride's house is or where the wedding is happening. It's not just that they want lotuses or hibiscus any more; it's 'I want my house/favourite location with the hibiscus that I like'," she explains, offering an insight into the hyper-personalisation trend that people in the industry have picked up on now. "It's very interesting to see that shift," she remarks.

And to think it was entirely by accident that Darshini stumbled into this avenue of art. "When I married and moved to Hyderabad in 2018, I was put in touch with a design studio called MESH. It's run by partners — Meenakshi and Shruthi. They asked if I wanted to try my hand at invites. I was in a new city and was trying to find my way through the freelance business space and they got me into this. Ever since, I've been doing a lot of custom work," she recounts.

A typical consult for Darshini begins with hearing the couple's story. "The bride or groom reaching out will give the basic specs — how many events and how many invites they need. Then, I start to ask questions — where did you meet? Is it an arranged marriage? Have you been friends forever? Are the two families friendly? What interests do you share? For example, there was one wedding where the groom was living in Hong Kong and his bride was living in Delhi; it was a long-distance courtship. So, we had the two skylines merged in the background. Some people will have interesting requests, like leopards or kingfishers. Then, I end up asking questions. So, most of the time, it starts with a really interesting conversation. It's a really nice way of knowing someone's story," she elaborates.

Darshini suggests that prospective clients show up with their stories in hand — whether you want to focus on your journey or the wedding location (some of her best work includes illustrating beautiful gazebos for receptions and laid-back bungalows for sangeets). "Come with reference ideas or a base clarity on what you want so that this process becomes engaging," she says.

While wedding invites and the associated art fare have taken up quite a bit of her time, Darshini designs for other occasions too, like birthdays and baby showers. All you need is a date and a story.

MUSIC PRODUCTION TERMS YOU SHOULD KNOW

(The authors run SaPa - the Subramaniam Academy of Performing Arts)

IF you are thinking about trying your hand at music production, the good news is that you can easily start from the comfort of your home. It can initially be overwhelming to fully grasp all of the different technical terms used in the process. To make it a little easier, we have compiled a glossary of music production terms that you should know about as you get started:

DAW

DAW stands for Digital Audio Workstation. It is an application that is used to record, edit, and produce audio. Some well-known examples of DAWs are Logic, GarageBand, and Ableton Live.

Bouncing

Bouncing means to export a track - usually to mp3 or wav.

EQ

EQ stands for equalisation. It uses an audio filter to isolate specific frequencies to either boost them or lower them (without changing the rest of the track in the process).

Pic for representational purposes only

Mixing

This means combining multiple recorded tracks (singing different parts, playing instruments, etc.) and adjusting the audio levels of each to create a balanced track. The final mix is also called the master mix.

Mastering

While mixing is about combining individual recordings into a single track, mastering is the final process your track goes through before it is released. In case you are producing an album, this is the stage where the tracks are put in order. Here, you must make sure the final track sounds consistent across various formats and platforms.

Panning

Panning means to place the sound either in the left or right speaker.

MIDI

This stands for Musical Instrument Digital Interface. It is one of the most powerful tools in music production, and records data and notes with software and electronic instruments.

Reverb

It is the reflection of sounds from surfaces. Producers can add more reverb electronically by using plug-ins.

While these are the technical music production terms you should know, it's also important to understand the parts of a song, and what they mean. The average pop song has the following parts:

- Verse: This is where the storytelling happens. The first verse gives listeners an idea of what the song is about, the second verse builds on that idea, and the final verse (if there is one) concludes the idea.
- Chorus: Musically and lyrically, the chorus is the high point, or the "big idea" of the song. This is where the singer hits the highest notes. If the song uses instrumentation, the chorus is where they all come together.
- Pre-Chorus (not all songs necessarily have this): If the song has a pre-chorus, it is used to connect the verse and the chorus. It adds a little more to the running story, and leads the listener up to the chorus.
- Bridge: Musically and lyrically, the bridge is different from the verse and the chorus. It takes the song in a different direction; if the verse is describing a story that takes place through time, the bridge can take a different perspective (for example, the lyrics can describe what somebody else was doing during that time).

Each part serves a different purpose in the larger context of the song, and the story it tries to tell. We recommend listening closely to well-known pop hits and identifying the different parts of each song.

EMOTIONAL INVESTMENT

(The author is a counsellor with InnerSight)

HAVE you noticed that people talk about relationships as investments?

The way we think about relationships between people, especially romantic or sexual relationships, may not be quite the same as one might think of education or finances, but yet, we talk about investing in all of these, and so many other aspects of life such as physical or mental health, politics and governance, civil society, public welfare and so on.

If relationships are investments like how one might make in mutual funds and other financial instruments, should we then expect reasonable dividends? Is there such a thing as booking profits then? Or a stop loss? And what exactly are we investing in relationships?

Sure, we might be giving and receiving money or gifts that are worth substantial amounts of money, but most often, we are talking of investments of time and energy. We invest our intent and interest, our attention, our social connections, our passion, our affection. We invest our spirit and our soul. Much of these investments may not be tangible, and despite all the machinations of the financial industry to somehow put financial value on everything, including the trees and plants around us, all the investments we make in loving relationships are not quite formulaic yet, except maybe when relationships get sour and a legal settlement is being sought — even then, it is nowhere near an exact science. Everything we invest in relationships may be intangible and unquantifiable, but they are investments nevertheless.

We do expect that the investment be respected, safeguarded and that there are returns - only, here we expect not just dividends in return but an equal or higher investment right back with us. We want as much time, energy, attention, interest, passion and everything else we invest to be reciprocally invested right back in us. That doesn't happen in other places — we would hardly expect the gym we invested in to be as invested in our fitness, nor would we even expect the school or college we join to be as concerned in us as we would be in the course to which we sought admission.

In relationships, if there is not a mutual and reciprocal investment, our stop loss flags get triggered — we ask ourselves what are we doing here, why are we continuing to invest in it, if we don't get a similar investment back? We wouldn't want to settle for crumbs - in fact, if any friend is doing that, we would call it out. And, of course, there is hardly ever any booking profit. If a relationship seems sound investment, we only invest more. We rarely walk away from it, satisfied we got the best return and look for new avenues — anyone doing that in relationships would get called out and they might struggle to get good new relationships.

We might talk loosely of investing in people as if it were no more than buying a few shares in the equity market, but investment in relationships is far more than that, isn't it.

This will be the director's first feature film, tentatively titled Trin Trin, and is bankrolled by Kamar Film Factory

DIGANTH, TARUN CHANDRA IN ANAND MISHRA'S PARANORMAL THRILLER

A SHARADHAA

GAALIPATA actor Diganth and Love Guru-fame Tarun Chandra will star in Anand Mishra's directorial debut. The film, tentatively titled Trin Trin, is set to be a paranormal thriller, confirms Anand. The director reveals that he was influenced by a handful of Korean and Hollywood films while writing the script that explores parallel universes and time travel.

Tarun Chandra

Anand, who hails from Mumbai, has produced non-fiction shows and is associated with various entertainment channels. He has also directed a couple of Bollywood music videos, commercial advertisements, and short films. Producer Kamar is bankrolling the project under his home banner, Kamar Factory. "Even though this is my first film with Kamar, I have earlier associated with the producer for a couple of shows -- Box Cricket League and Indian Bowling League, which had various actors from Kannada stars participating. Sandalwood is not new to me, but feature films are," says Anand.

Kamar and Anand Mishra

The director plans to take the film on floors sometime in mid-January, and is currently doing the preparations, and simultaneously working on the music. The makers have roped in well-known cinematographer, H C Venu, and music director, Anand Raja Vikram.

Diganth, who has completed shooting for Marigold, Gaalipata 2, Huttuhabba Subhashayagalu, and Nimma Katheyalli Hannavilla, is now waiting for its release. The actor, who has a few pending portions to be completed for the Kannada remake of the Telugu film, Evaru, is now busy shooting for Thimayya & Thimmayya along with senior actor, Anant Nag.

Tarun Chandra, who was last seen in Goa (2015), has not taken up projects for a few years, Trin Trin by Anand Mishore will be a comeback film for the actor.

'My character in MadhaGaja made me realise that agriculture is not an easy job'

Ashika Ranganath, in conversation with CE, tells us the effort she took to play Pallavi, an educated girl, who takes to farming

CE FEATURES

FOR Ashika Ranganath, her role in MadhaGaja is not that of an average village belle. Talking to CE ahead of the December 3 release of the Sriimurali-starrer, Ashika says, "Pallavi is an educated girl who gets back to her roots. She takes up farming and this will be the attraction factor of this character."

Backed by Umapathy Films, the Mahesh Kumar directorial marks Sriimurali's first collaboration with Ashika. The latter shared that her role in MadhaGaja has the potential to impart a good message to the youth of her age. "Moreover, the director has created such a character in a commercial flick. I thought it was quite an interesting choice," she says.

Ashika had a lot of inputs coming from the team about how she should carry this role. "Being a highly educated village girl in MadhaGaja, I had to get the dialect right. Secondly, they wanted me to sport a tan and wear mostly half sarees in earthy colours. Overall a lot of effort has gone into making Pallavi a memorable character. I am confident that the role will stand out," explains Ashika.

Recalling the shooting process, Ashika shares her experiences of riding a rusted old bicycle, learning to hold an axe, getting into the muddy fields, sowing, riding a tractor, and ploughing. It wasn't a character that Ashika could just go on sets and perform. "I had to practically learn farming and it was a first-of-its-kind experience for me. It was more like a task, and I learned it," says Ashika, adding, "Hats off to the farmers who do this job on a daily basis. Agriculture is not an easy job."

Apart from MadhaGaja, the actor has two more films -- Avatara Purusha and Raymo lined up for release. "I am glad that I am not being typecast. There won't be repetition in the kind of roles I am playing. Thankfully, directors, who are approaching me, are portraying me in different shades," she signs off.

Is team Raymo looking at a Pongal release?

The romantic drama, directed by Pavan Wadeyar, stars Ishan and Ashika Ranganath

CE FEATURES

DIRECTOR Pavan Wadeyar has wrapped up the shooting of his upcoming film, Raymo. The team recently released the film's first teaser, and it has been getting a good response from the audience. The teaser has an Indo-Western touch and features Ishan as the titular character, and Ashika Ranganath as Mohana.

The makers are now getting ready to unveil the introduction video song, which will be released in December. The release plans of Raymo, which is now in the post-production process, are also underway. Going by the buzz, the makers of this musical romantic drama are looking to release the film in multiple languages this Pongal. With no other Kannada films planning the release around that date, Raymo might only have competition from other language films.

However, an official confirmation is yet to be made by the team. "We recently released the teaser, which has been received well by the netizens. We are now getting ready to release the first video song. We also have a lot of graphic works, which are also in process. As for the release date, we are looking to hit theatres in January 2022, and will soon be fixing the date," says director Pavan Wadeyar.

Produced by CR Manohar, Raymo also stars Madhoo, Sarathkumar, Achyuth Kumar and Rajesh Nataranga in important roles. With music by Arjun Janya, Raymo, which is shot extensively in foreign locations has Vaidy S handling the cinematography.

Abhishek Bachchan: My job is to entertain, not give morality lessons

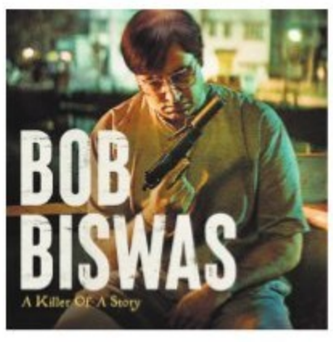
The actor opens up in a chat ahead of the release of his upcoming Zee5 original, Bob Biswas

AVINASH RAMACHANDRAN

Francis Ford Coppola famously said, "Sequels are not done for the audience or cinema or the filmmakers. It's for the distributor. The film becomes a brand." The same thing can be said about spinoffs too. Given how superhero franchise films have turned into money-spinners, can we really blame the studios for going down that path? Almost every social media list of prospective Hindi film characters that deserve spinoffs, had one name prominently featured in them: Kahaani's Bob Biswas. Come December 3, this story is set to unfold on Zee5 with Abhishek Bachchan stepping into the huge shoes of actor Saswata Chatterjee, whose eight-minute role, achieved cult status. "He is more than just a contract killer. He is a father, a husband, and a patient too. There are contradictions in this character. How can someone so nice and soft-spoken be a contract killer? I'm grateful that there are people who consider me worthy of such a challenging role," says Abhishek.

Life has come full circle for Abhishek, given that this character was originally written by Sujoy Ghosh with the former in mind. Kahaani was supposed to be a two-person story featuring Bob and Vidya Bagchi. However, fate had other plans, the script was reworked, and the rest is history. "It is definitely flattering that characters are being written for me, but I don't read too much into it because at the end of the day, the work we do talks more about us than the work we didn't," says Abhishek, who has had a golden run with the characters he has done recently.

Post his self-imposed break, Abhishek has played an accommodative romantic in Ludo, an untameable stockbroker in The Big Bull, and now a soft-spoken contract killer in Bob Biswas. He has particularly thrived in roles coloured in grey waala shades—be it Beera Munda or Gurukanth Desai or Shankar Nagre or Roy Kapoor or Rakesh Trivedi or Lallan Singh. If Big B said the line begins from wherever he stands, Junior B has thrived in operating between the lines. "I am attracted to flawed characters. I am excited by these characters rising above flaws and realising their inner potential," says Abhishek, who next plays yet another flawed character in SSS-7, the official remake of the Tamil film, Oththa Seruppu Size 7. While his previous Tamil remake (Run) had him trying to establish commercial hero credentials, this time, the film is an attempt to stand out from the rest. "When Parthiban (the director of OS 7) met me on the sets of Ponniyin Selvan, which stars Aishwarya (Rai Bachchan), he was so humble and showed the film to me. I loved it; it was a work of pure genius. When he asked if we should make it in Hindi, I knew it was an opportunity I shouldn't miss," reveals Abhishek, and goes on to talk about how it is such "huge challenges" that he enjoys.



The rise of OTT has made these challenges more frequent, and Abhishek has been at the heart of bridging the divide between content for theatres and OTT. He wastes no time in shooing away questions about the possibility of his OTT sojourns being detrimental to cinema 'stardom'. "It is an exciting medium and it is here to stay. There is a lot of impactful storytelling that is happening in this space," says the actor, who also touches upon the blurring linguistic boundaries due to the spread of OTT in India. Notably, Abhishek has a strong emotional connection with Tamil Nadu courtesy of owning Chennaiyin FC, the football club that represents the city in the Indian Super League. "Language barriers are immaterial today. Last year's Breathe 2 had a Tamil dubbed version. My dear friend Suriya is doing such wonderful work, and his last two films -- Soorarai Pottru and Jai Bhim -- had Hindi dubbed versions. The lines are definitely blurring."

These observations are also a result of Abhishek active on social media. Perhaps one of Indian cinema's most active Twitter personalities, the actor's responses to his fans and trolls alike is well-documented. His Twitter bio reads, "Actor; sports fan" and it is on social media that the sports fan in him runs rampant. Though he owns football and kabaddi teams, his sports tweets are not just limited to cricket, football, and kabaddi. "That's because we have immense sporting talent in India, and if I can aid it in any way with my tweets, I will do it."

He is, however, clear about compartmentalising his various personas. 'Sports fan Abhishek' is as distinct as 'actor Abhishek', and his bundle of positivity on social media is quite far removed from his acting roles that are mostly nuzzled in the grey zones. "With my films, I am just telling a story. Each actor has their own approach as to the subject matter they want to be part of. As for the whole morality debate, with all due respect, I am not your parent. If you want a lesson in morality and value, speak to your parents. Our job is only to entertain you!" signs off Abhishek Bachchan, with a characteristic punch line.
